No. 4, southbound, will leave San Francisco at 5 p. m. and is due here at 7:22 a. m. She arrives at Los Angeles at 7:45 a. m. This is the pajatial Sunset Limited, the crack train of the main line.

MAYOR ROBINSON BECOMES A GOOD SCOUT TOMORROW

Surrounded by Boy Scouts of America He Will Swear In At City Hall

Surrounded by hosts of Boy Scouts on Saturday afternoon, promptly at one o'clock, on the steps of the City Hall, Mayor Spencer Robinson will solemnly take the Scout Oath and become an Honorary Tenderfoot Scout in the Boy Scouts of America.

Scouts from every troop in Glendale will be on hand at the ceremony, which is expected to last about twenty minutes and which has been planned as a fitting tribute to the Mayor for his active interest in Scouting affairs. This comes at a specially fitting time, as the Twelfth Birthday of the Boy Scouts of America is being celebrated all over the country during this week.

In an opening address to the Mayor and the assembled Boy Scouts, Robert N. Taylor, the 75 year old Scoutmaster of Troop No. 1 and pioneer veteran scout leader in California, will tell of the first anniversary of the organization and what the celebration of this yearly event means to the boys of today—"the men of tomorrow." Prior to presenting Mayor Robinson with the official Tenderfoot Badge, Eagle Scout Benjamin Robison, of Troop No. 2, will tell the Mayor what the Scout badge stands for and why it was adopted as the official emblem of the Boy Scouts of the World.

Upon taking the Scout Oath the Mayor will be presented with a certificate of membership from the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America by Eagle Scout Robert Searle of Troop No. 1. Following this brief ceremony four picked Scouts from each troop will tell of the Scout Laws and the Mayor will be given a card with these laws, which he will be expected to live up to during the insuing year. What Mayor Robinson will say to the Scouts cannot be foretold. Anyway, if he don't say anything he can sure sing, so all the Scouts are looking forward eagerly to the ceremony.

After the Mayor has had his say, the Scouts will come to attention and a picture will be taken by the Glendale Press photographer of all of them, including Scout Mayor Robinson, as they give the Scout pledge and salute to "Old Glory." The ceremony will be fittingly closed by the blowing of Taps by the buglers of Troop No. 2.

WOOL GROWERS CONVENE

PENDLETON, Ore., Feb. 10.—Oregon wool-growers are gathering here today for their annual convention and jubilee.

With some record wool sales to their credit during the past few months, and a new season just in the offing, the convention this year is fraught with unusual importance.

One of the features of the two-day meet is a dinner tonight under the auspices of the commercial association, at which Dan P. Smythe, local sheepman and lawyer, will head the card as toastmaster.

WEATHER

Southern California: Tonight and Saturday, rain.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Unsettled weather tonight and Saturday with probable showers.

No Return Possible From Old Age Says Henry James Tonight

There is no return from old age, according to Henry James who discusses in his comments on the news of the day the almost incomprehensible operation performed by Dr. Lorenz to bring back buoyany youth. In interesting fashion he also discusses the trials and tribulations of a city official in his battle against bootlegging.

In "The Listening Post" you will find an interesting character analysis of two of the greatest American leaders and statesmen. In his usual fascinating way James W. Foley examines the natures of Washington and Lincoln both of whosce birthdays take place this month.

The Post philosopher declares that each man was endowed with just the proper characteristics demanded at the time and that chance and that chance and circumstance are instrumental in making a life.

On the editorial page you will find some mighty interesting reading about theorists and idealists by Stella Stewart and John Pilgrim. If you haven't time to read the entire paper, read the editorial page and you will keep apace with the world.

GLENDALE IS 1083 ON ROTARY MAP

Governor of District Assigns Numeral to New Organization

Through a letter received from Charles B. Ellis, governor of the 23rd district of International Rotary Clubs, the local was advised at its luncheon Thursday that its number would be 1083.

David Crofton, a local member, gave a talk on the shoe industry, particularly as regards his own business. He spoke of coming to Glendale nine years ago and establishing himself as a merchant in this line with a limited capital, but every year has brought an increase in his business. He stated that during the past few months the price of shoes has dropped 25 percent and that he anticipates another reduction April 1, when the factory wage scale is adjusted. He closed with the flattering statement that rotary members are the best lot of fellows in shoe leather.

The project of the weekly bulletin to be published by the club was discussed and H. V. Hollister, C. E. Neale and R. D. White were appointed a committee to select a name for it.

The chief after-dinner speaker was Charles J. Hall, teacher of the mens' Bible class at Temple Baptist church, who, according to William Jennings Bryan heads the list as a campaign speaker. His talk was on "Patriotism." He said the optimist is a person who at night takes the lemons that have been handed to him during the day and makes lemonade of them. He declared that the difference between the east and west coast is that the east dwells on the past, the west on the future. In the east you are asked about your ancestors. The west asks how you have behaved since you arrived on this mundane sphere and what you propose to do. In closing he complimented Glendale on its growth, saying: "It has just had its breakfast and has a day's job ahead. When the day's work is done, it will measure up to Los Angeles."

Warner Van Valkenburg, who composed the song "In California," dedicated to the Rotary club of Los Angeles, and who also wrote "Old Rotary," was present and led in community singing. He stated that "In California" would probably be chosen as the convention song.

CITY COUNCIL REJECTS ALL BIDS FOR PIPE

Gives City Contract for Laying Campbell and Dryden Streets

PASS BUS ORDINANCE

Call Election for Sierra Avenue Water Supply

The city council last night rejected all bids for cast iron water pipe, to be used for municipal purposes, but awarded the work of installing the pipe lines on Campbell and Dryden streets to the city of Glendale. The hearing of protests against the improvement of Hawthorne street from Pacific avenue to San Fernando road was held and the matter referred to the city engineer to check on the frontage. Two ordinances pertaining to the operation of motor busses in Glendale were adopted.

A resolution was adopted accepting a deed to property along West Broadway for street purposes and an ordinance was passed calling an election in the Sierra avenue district for the laying of water pipe. Another resolution adopted was that ordering work to be done on Isabel street, while an ordinance was adopted holding up the proposed work on Los Angeles street.

Resolutions of intention to improve Justin avenue, Lexington drive and Belmont street were passed. A petition was presented by Councilman Kimlin asking that Granada, Lomita and Maple streets be improved. A. G. Smith asked for a permit to build an apartment house on Elk street.

In the matter of bids for providing cast iron pipe for city purposes, the bids were opened according to schedule, and after all had been read another bid was received, which resulted in all of the bids being rejected, it being decided that this was the only fair way to proceed. New bids for the furnishing of this pipe will be opened February 23. As the city of Glendale was the lowest bidder for the proposed laying of water pipe along Campbell and Dryden streets, it was awarded the contract for this work.

Bids were opened for the improvement on California avenue from Columbus to Kenilworth, this

OBSCENE MAGAZINE SALE STOPPED BY POLICE

Acting on Complaint of W. C. T. U. Chief Martin Cleans Stands

Chief of Police Allen O. Martin this morning received a letter from Mrs. C. W. Bacon, corresponding secretary of the W. C. T. U. in Glendale, thanking him for the action taken on a complaint filed recently with the police department regarding the sale of magazines that, according to the complaint are regarded as obscene and not the proper literature for young people.

When the complaint was filed Chief of Police Martin instructed all patrolmen to notify the book stands on their beats that these books must not be displayed. The sale of the books could not be stopped, as it would require a city ordinance to do this, but as the principal objections to the books were the pictures on the cover that, according to W. C. T. U. officials, were extremely suggestive, preventing the display of them to the public proved satisfactory.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH LADIES MEET

Ladies' Aid Has Earned $1000 for New Furnishings

Twelve to fourteen ladies reported for duty at the all-day meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Central Christian church, Thursday. A lunchon was served at noon. Quilts and aprons which the ladies are making on orders were the work of the day. They have earned and have in the bank $1000 which will be used in furnishings for the new church when completed. Besides this they have turned in $400 to the building fund and keep turning in $100 at a time as fast as earned. There is a demand for their work, especially in the manufacture of children's dresses on which they specialize, and they say the money comes in quite rapidly.

HARDING PLANS FACING SENATE WITH PACTS

Little Opposition Is Expected From Democrats it Is Understood

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Harding will go to the senate in person today or tomorrow to submit the armament treaties and open his fight for their ratification, White House officials said today.

Harding's message, it is understood, will feature the declaration that the treaties involve no surrender of American sovereignty. He will also assert that his campaign pledges relating to world concord through conference has been followed.

The president has been advised by Senators Lodge and Underwood that little opposition is expected to the treaties in the senate, but it was decided he should present them personally to emphasize both to the senate and the country the achievements of the conference.

President Harding is putting the finishing touches on his treaty message, most of which was compiled in his office late yesterday.

The exact time of his appearance at the capitol will depend on when the speech is finished and printed.

POSTAL EMPLOYES GET TOGETHER AT BIG DINNER

Program of Speeches Is Followed by Entertainment; Forty Attend

The employes of the Glendale postoffice held a regular old-fashioned get-together party in the rooms of the chamber of commerce last night. Dinner was served promptly at 6:45 o'clock in the dining hall, the course repast being served by Glen Inn. After the tables had been cleared away a program of literary and musical numbers was given.

The committee in charge of this affair consisted of H. Weger, chairman; W. W. Hunt, F. C. Stoner, J. Boettner and A. S. Wood. The idea of this committee in arranging this affair was to permit the employes in the office to get better acquainted. The main thing accomplished was the forming of the P. E. P. (Postal Employes Pep club), regular meetings of which will be held. Only employes of this office are eligible.

W. W. Hunt was toastmaster of the high jinx that was held after dinner. In his usual genial manner he told the purpose of the

Your Advertising

There is probably no state in the Union where advertising is so firmly a part of the life and routine of business as California.

Advertising, in every conceivable form, good, bad and indifferent, is in the atmosphere.

In the volume, the good advertising loses distinctiveness and its credit for efficiency, just as a good rifleman is lost in the result of mass fire. He may be the only one hitting but the others share the credit.

Naturally, in the general tendency a thousand worthless advertising propositions secure hearings. A thousand shoestring peddlers of worthless wasting advertising devices gather golden harvests going from town to town where merchants are striving in good faith and good money to put their communities into the limelight, or the sunlight in California.

In the last analysis the money so spent is wasted and produces no result except that it effects a loss to the only legitimate advertising purveyors, the newspapers in those communities.

When the error is found out, and the waste realized the money for the local newspaper advertising is cut to the bone to make up for the wasted funds.

The local newspapers suffer therefore for every penny spent on ill considered advertising.

Unlike the catch-penny advertising novelty man, the newspapers cannot pack up and move with a grip from worked out territory. They cannot leave without a word, or without paying hotel bills.

They cannot go to the next city with their proposition.

Their plants must remain, their investments must remain. They must do business, meet payrolls, which were based on the good faith of the merchants' support and boost for the city whether the merchant does or does not advertise as he should.

Advertising withdrawn from a local newspaper is a direct damage to the community for it shows immediately to the newcomers what kind of merchants there are in the community.

In the new year with us, merchants of Glendale would do well to shut their doors to the glittering offer of the traveling peddler of advertising, conserve their funds and devote their attention to the publications in their own town that are with them, win or lose, bearing the brunt of the battle for place in the sun, sometimes with—and sometimes without—all the advertising they should have.

Every dollar expended in outside catch-pennies, presented as cheap, is spent against the interest of the community, for it leaves town, never to return.

And the sum total of such expenditures last year in Glendale would surprise the merchants of the city, if the figures were compiled.

BALLOTS IN GALE AT THE CITY HALL

Majority Approve Bus Line on Glendale Press Blank

MOST PRESS BALLOTS

Hearing by L. A. Utilities Board Postponed 'Til Next Week

Straw ballots, filled out on blanks printed in the Glendale Daily Press, have snowed under the city councilmen in the past two days. They indicate, from a general view, that the citizens of Glendale are interested and the majority wish the city bus line established.

The straw ballot is still being published in all of the daily papers of Glendale and it is interesting to note that the majority of the ballots filled in and mailed to the city hall were those published in the Glendale Daily Press. The ballots published in the Press and returned to the city hall exceed those of the nearest competitor by a ratio of nearly two to one.

In another column of this issue there appears the straw ballot blank, asking the citizen to mark in the proper square whether or not he favors the establishment of such a bus line and if this line is established, would he favor a bond election to finance it. The ballots when received are forwarded to C. D. Gulick, transportation expert, who has been engaged by the city as a consulting engineer for the bus line. The ballots will be counted Saturday.

Mr. Gulick appeared before the public utilities board of the city of Los Angeles yesterday to make formal application for a permit to operate a bus line on the streets of that city. The hearing of the application was postponed until one day next week on account of a rush of business in that department. No definite date was set for the hearing but members of the city administration and Mr. Gulick are planning to visit the board on Monday.

SAN FERNANDO FOLKS APPROVE SEWER IDEA

Improvement Association Inaugurates Work for South End

Rain has no terrors for the enterprising business men of San Fernando road who met last night at the business headquarters of William Griffin at 806 South San Fernando to complete the organization and inaugurate the work of the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association.

Over 40 enthusiastic members were present and applications from 40 would-be members were presented.

The type of electrolier desired for the lighting of the "road" was discussed, sentiment proving unanimously in favor of a three-light electrolier, that would be a credit to the town. A committee was appointed to get prices on the various parts of the electrolier and report at the next meeting.

The subject of a municipal bus service between Glendale and Los Angeles was discussed and the action taken by the city in that connection was approved.

The association also went on record as favoring a sewer system to cover the whole of Glendale, but no expression was taken in regard to the character or location of a disposal plant, the consensus of opinion being that City Manager Reeves and council members are capable of handling the problem.

A decision was reached to hold fortnightly meetings, the first and third Thursdays of each month, the next meeting to be held February 16 at the same place.

The committee appointed to secure prices on electroliers was composed of Roy Johnson, O. B. Tewes and A. M. Salyer.

Another committee appointed to secure the improvement of San Fernando road by the filling of chuck holes included H. S. Cobb, Roy Johnson and A. M. Salyer.

It was the most enthusiastic meeting of property owners that has been seen in the southern district of Glendale this year.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO AWARD TROPHIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The National league may resume the old practice of awarding a trophy to the most valuable player in the league, according to President John A. Heydler. He is in favor of it, but says it is up to the club owners to decide when they meet next week. The American league already has voted to do the same thing.

BESSIE DOLLAR ALMOST SPENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—The steamer Bessie Dollar, Vancouver to Manila, has been damaged by storm and is returning to port, according to a wireless early today from the steamer Bearfort. The bridge of the Bessie Dollar has been carried away, the captain injured, and the steward killed. The damaged vessel was 700 miles off Cape Flattery at 8 p. m. last night. She reported yesterday that she was returning to Vancouver but gave no reason.

RAINS DELAY RAIL TRAFFIC

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—State-wide rains for the last 24 hours have greatly delayed rail traffic. A landslide in Plumas county tied up the Western Pacific over night. Steam shovel crews kept the Southern Pacific lines open when slides at Nevada Dock, Hanna Hill and Vallejo Junction threatened to block the trains.

With storm warnings issued for the coast from Eureka to San Diego, rain was forecast for today over California. Rapid rising of the Sacramento, Feather, Yuba and Mokelumne rivers was expected.

OWEN EMERY IS NOW A JUSTICE

Surprised by Appointment to Preside in Burbank Township

Owen C. Emery, Glendale attorney, was notified yesterday by Supervisor H. C. Wright of the Los Angeles county board of supervisors that he had been appointed justice of the peace for Burbank township to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of H. M. Miller, and that the board of supervisors had confirmed his appointment. In notifying Mr. Emery of his appointment Mr. Wright said that while Mr. Emery had not applied for the post of justice of the peace, several of his friends had requested his appointment and the recommendations offered and his qualifications for the position were such that the board of supervisors regarded him as the only logical choice.

Mr. Emery will complete the term of H. M. Miller, holding the office until January, 1923, when a new appointment will be made.

In speaking of his appointment Mr. Emery said:

"The appointment came as somewhat of a surprise, as I had made no application for the office. However, as the justice of the peace in this township can continue in the active practice of law along with the office, I have accepted the appointment.

"If the appointment would have necessitated giving up any of my practice, I would not have accepted.

"I shall continue actively in the practice of law at my present location."

Mr. Emery stated his policy in discharging the duties of the office would be to "give justice to all and expedite all matters that come before me."

The district under the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace of Burbank township comprises Glendale, Burbank, La Crescenta, La Canada, Tujunga and Sunland. Mr. Emery has rented a room in the Wright building, where he has his office at present, and will hold court there according to present estimates, two days a week.

Mr. Emery has practiced law in Glendale for the past two years, moving his offices here from Los Angeles, where he practiced for five years. He is a graduate of the local high school and the University of Southern California. During the war he served overseas with the ninety-first division, in the 316th ammunition train. He is a Blue lodge Mason, a member of Glendale lodge No. 1289, B. P. O. E., the American Legion, is a director of the chamber of commerce, on the executive board of the Glendale Credit association and is a member of the Rotary club.

ULSTERITES SWARM TO DEFENSES

Three Thousand Anti-Republicans Join 5000 Constabulary Forces

FRONTIER LINE FIRM

Pres. Collins of Southern Ireland Sends Wire to London

BELFAST, Feb. 10.—Three thousand Ulsters, bitter enemies of southern Irishmen, today joined the force of 5000 constabulary patrolling the Ulster frontier.

The Sinn Fein extremists who raided Ulster are still holding many captives.

Sinn Fein extremist leaders, whose forces are scattered along the southern side of the Ulster border, telegraphed to Michael Collins, head of the southern provisional government, that it was feared "Ulster men would commit further outrages," referring to reprisal activities of the Unionists for the kidnaping of 200 northerners.

Collins telegraphed to London that an attack by the Ulster men would only be possible "with the support of British troops, which would render the situation most serious." This report has created the worst possible impression here and both Unionists and Sinn Feiners here fear an outbreak.

WEIRD DRIVING ON VALLEY ROAD MAKES WRECK

J. E. Flynn of Taft Careering Along Road Causes Collision

With an empty wine barrel and a bottle that had held brandy in the tonneau of his car, J. E. Flynn, of Taft, Cal., driving on the wrong side of the San Fernando road, crashed into a machine driven by Joe Ybarra, of San Fernando, accompanied by Fidel Mata.

After the crash, Flynn attempted to escape, while Ybarra and Mata were disentangling themselves from their wrecked machine. He was caught by Detectives Delgarde and Herda and Patrolman Antuony as he was about to board a car for Los Angeles. He explained his attempt by saying he was on the way to report the accident and have his car towed in. He was charged with reckless driving.

According to Ybarra and Mata, they were driving on the right side of the road when Flynn came down upon them, at about the Glendale pumping plant. According to the victims, Flynn was apparently unable to avoid the collision. Other witnesses declared Flynn was weaving his car from side to side.

Terrified by Flynn's driving, Ybarra said to avoid him he turned into a ditch. Flynn's car crashed into him, however, and practically destroyed the fronts of both machines.

Ybarra, thrown against the steering wheel, was painfully injured. Mata was cut about the head by broken glass from the windshield.

After the accident a witness said Flynn told him to take the number of Ybarra's machine, which he alleged Flynn said he could not see. Then Flynn, it is alleged, jumped into a passing auto. He was taken from a Pacific Electric car at San Fernando road and Brand boulevard.

J. E. Flynn was taken to the office of Dr. T. C. Young who after an examination pronounced him intoxicated. A charge of felony, charging him with failing to render aid after injuring the driver of the other car and another charge of reckless driving filed against him. His bail was set at $1300 cash or a property bond of $2600.

Flynn was fined $250 in Police Judge F. H. Lowe's court for reckless driving and remanded to the custody of the chief of police. No action was taken on the charge of failing to give aid to the men he is alleged to have injured.

22 MILLION BOXES ORANGES SOLD LAST YEAR

More Than Four Million of Lemons Also Consumed

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—No longer is the orange a freak fruit given to the children at Christmas, and put on the table only on extraordinary occasions, according to reports of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange.

Last year the American public consumed over 22,000,000 boxes of oranges.

As for the lemon, 4,718,000 boxes were bought by the public, which represents some considerable quantity of lemonade.

The size of the industry, and its meaning to California can be seen in the fact that 175,000 acres are planted in oranges (bearing) and the lemon and grapefruit orchards bring this total acreage well up over 225,000 acres.

Altogether, California's citrus shipments totalled 60,147 carloads, sold at a total cost of $128,431,059, of which amount $83,537,344 went back to the producers, and $44,893,715 to freight and refrigeration. These results were obtained despite the general business depression, and the bad condition of the lemon industry last winter when many thousands of boxes of lemons were not picked because of the poor market, but were left to rot under the trees as fertilizer.

BURBANK WOMEN PLAN CLUBHOUSE

Officers Decide Organization's Needs Are Imperative

BURBANK, Feb. 10.—A meeting of the directors and committee chairmen of the Woman's club met in executive session on Wednesday to consider plans for the erection of a club house. All were agreed that one must be built in the immediate future, but the location was not definitely determined. The club owns two lots on Orange Grove avenue but some are in favor of selling these and buying others. A hold-over session will be held soon to settle upon this matter.

BRIDGE LUNCHEON

BURBANK, Feb. 10.—A delightful bridge luncheon was served Friday by Mrs. Andrews at her attractive home at Sunset Cayno drive and Providencia avenue. Eight guests enjoyed bridge at the conclusion of the luncheon. Mrs. Andrews expects to entertain the two other tables of a set of 16 players next week.

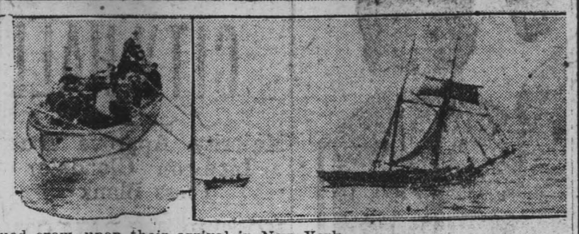
CAMERA STORY OF CAPTAIN RANDALL'S RESCUE OF SIX SEA CASTAWAYS



An unusual marine picture is this, made from the United States liner Hudson, off St. Pierre, New Foundland, showing the sinking of the French fishing smack Reine Deemers, from which Captain Randall, of the Hudson, removed six of the crew under difficulties. The photograph at the right shows the rescued crew being rowed to the Hudson, which stood by. The captain of the fishing smack was washed overboard. In the top photograph Captain Randall is shown, with the rescued crew, upon their arrival in New York.

GLENDALE MANOR SUBDIVISION IS GREAT FIND

Minneapolis Experts Surprised to Discover Tract Available

As a direct refutation of the somewhat prevalent belief that all close-in subdivision property has long been swallowed up, attention is called to that abundantly favored and strategically located district along Brand boulevard, just outside Glendale city limits, and within the city of Los Angeles, which is now the scene of a great and well justified activity.

The recent transfer of a choice 80-acre tract centrally located in this thriving section promises an additional subdivision sensation of pyramiding proportions.

The firm of Dickinson & Gillespie, Inc., 529 West Eighth street, extensive subdivision operators throughout the Western states, with offices in Los Angeles and Minneapolis, is the proud possessor of this unexpected "find" and they are elated at having secured another rare close-in subdivision property which apparently had been entirely overlooked in the mad scramble for the more outlying acreage which has prevailed during recent times.

Mr. Dickinson, who made the purchase, said that up to the day on which he first looked at the property he had never expected that such a location in this territory was still available.

"Acting under telegraphic advice from our Minneapolis office, I resolved to investigate this far famed territory, the development of which had astonished subdividers throughout the entire country.

"In my own mind it hardly seemed possible that with the enormous strides of advancement recently witnessed in this vicinity that there shoud be an opportunity of such evident merit still uncovered.

"In common with our eastern representatives we had shared the hope and desire that we might be fortunate enough to at least secure a small portion of that rare and limited territory between Glendale, the fastest growing city in the world, and Los Angeles, the greatest city we have ever seen.

"Needless to say, when I saw the realization of this ideal directly before my eyes, I snapped up this wonderful opportunity without further delay."

Indicative of its location the new tract is to be marketed under the name of Glendale Manor, although it is entirely within the limits of the city of Los Angeles, four miles from the new Second street tunnel and within two miles of the business center of Glendale.

That this acreage has not been generally on the market is evidenced by the fact that for nearly forty years it has been held under one owner, in the name of Mrs. Harrington Brown, wife of the well known ex-postmaster of Los Angeles—Mr. Harrington Brown.

It is a peculiar coincidence that years ago when the railroads were first penetrating the fertile fields of the Far West this same tract was laid out as a town-site and named Minneapolis, and now a concern originally from the same city is about to again subdivide it and make it available to the teeming mass of humanity which has already surrounded it.

To keep faith with old tradition in this respect, the most central thoroughfare of the tract will be called Minneapolis street.

Mr. Clifford Gillespie arrived here from the East last week to share with Mr. Dickinson the personal supervision of the developing and marketing of Glendale Manor.

Immediately upon stepping from the train he drove to the new tract to make his initial survey of the property preparatory to launching the selling campaign.

"Glendale Manor is the entire fulfillment of my highest expectations," was Mr. Gillespie's first comment upon viewing the tract. "In all of our 20 years of subdivision experience this is the first time that we have been so privileged as to be able to offer low priced lots directly between the two fastest growing cities of the United States and in the exact midst of the greatest growth and development we have ever witnessed.

"In response to the present day demand and need we will permit temporary dwellings on the rear of the lots, but only when same are completely and neatly finished and painted on the exterior.

During the past week Sales Manager F. B. Burns has organized and is now training a selling force of over 50 salesmen who will be fully prepared to give courteous attention and precise information to all interested parties from the morning of the pre-opening sale until the last of the 450 lots are sold.

Tract offices have been erected on Glendale boulevard at Atwater avenue. A handsomely illustrated 3-colored folder, containing a detailed map of Los Angeles and of Glendale, has been prepared.

"Draft riots" nowadays are caused by people's failing to shut the door.

ORIGINAL EDITOR OF PRESS HERE

Frank Chase, of Petrora, California, who started publication of the Glendale Press many years ago, spent several days this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Chase, of 1439 East Wilson street. He came Monday and left this morning for his home, near San Diego. Mr. Chase has been away from Glendale for several years and is greatly surprised at the progress made here in every line during his absence.

MRS. JACKMAN IS HOSTESS

BURBANK, Feb. 10.—Mrs. Geo. Jackman was hostess on Wednesday at a 1 o'clock luncheon party after which five hundred was enjoyed by the guests, who made up three tables. Mrs. Roy Campbell had the highest score. The beautiful home at Sunset Canyon drive and Elmwood avenue, was decorated in spring blossoms.

BUSINESS MEN'S GYM CLASS IS MAKING GOOD

Thirty Enrolled in Tuesday and Thursday Class

The Tuesday and Thursday night business men's class at the Glendale high school gymnasium is coming along fine. Since the organization of this class a couple of weeks ago thirty of the business men of the city have enrolled, and this number is being enlarged each class night. Indoor and volley ball competitions are being played by the members.

In the Monday and Wednesday night class there are about fifty members. These boys specialize on basketball, and a number of crack teams are being developed. The Standard Oil team of Glendale defeated the Standard Oil team of Van Nuys last Monday evening by a score of 36 to 14.

LONG SATURDAY BILL AT GLENDALE

Heading the vaudeville bill at Glendale theatre Saturday, Manager William A. Howe, by special arrangement with Florence Roberts, will present Fredrik Vogeding, noted Dutch actor from the Royal theatre, Amsterdam, Holland, supported by Genevieve Blinn, Clyde Benson and Harry Austin, in the one-act comedy, "Blindfolded," by Rupert Hughes.

This high-class feature act comes direct from a 26-week engagement over the big eastern vaudeville circuits, and should prove a veritable treat to Glendale theatre patrons.

James McNally, described as "the boy with the hats," will be included on the new bill that is scheduled to open at the Glendale theatre Saturday, February 11. McNally has a distinctly unique act and gets a fund of laughter out of mere headgear. Johnson and Burke have a "talking novelty" which they announce as "all comedy," and which is bound to prove sure-fire. Morris and Block, with their "Nonsensical Nonsense" have another act that has been a big success in every house along the circuit. The Crouch Richards Trio offers a "musical festival" that is one of the most pleasing acts of its kind now in vaudeville.

FARMERS RECEIVE MARKET REPORTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Wireless is now playing a very important part in making the American farmer the best informed farmer in the world. National and local agricultural market reports are now spread broadcast throughout practically the entire country by means of the wireless telepragh and telephone, and are being received by state bureaus of markets, agricultural schools, and hundreds of amateur wireless operators, and thence relayed to farmers, shipping associations, banks, and other agricultural interests.

LIGHTWEIGHT WIN GAME

In a recent game the lightweight basketball team of the Glendale high school defeated the lightweights from the Alhambra high school by a score of 12 to 8. As the Alhambra team has defeated practically all of the strong teams in the Central League, it would seem that the Glendale lads are right in the line for the championship of this league. It is believed that the Glendale boys will make a strong bid for the basketball championship of Southern California, after the Central League games are ended.

MISS THOMAS WEDS ULYS L. KYLE

BURBANK, Feb. 10.—Saturday afternoon there occurred the marriage of Miss Irene Thomas and Ulys L. Kyle at the residence of Judge J. H. Avery on Verdugo avenue. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Henry of North Palm avenue and has been employed as a clerk in the postoffice for the past year. The groom is city night policeman, which position he has held for the past few months. Previous to that time he was employed as driver for the Original stage line. Following the ceremony the couple made a short visit to San Bernardino. They are now at home in the Ramsey apartments on Orange Grove avenue.

BANDITS ATTACK ARGENTINE TOWNS

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 10 (by mail to the United Press).—Losses running into many thousands of pesos are being suffered by firms doing business in the disturbed regions of Patagonia, where the Argentine government is now waging deliberate war against the large groups of bandits and dissatisfied laborers who have been overrunning that section. Some of the banks have closed their doors temporarily, owing to the lack of proper police protection. Pitched battles and pillaging of "estancias" have enlivened the desolate territory of Santa Cruz. The situation is much more serious than a year ago, as on the present occasion the movement is not primarily an agitation for higher wages and improved working conditions. The real cause of the disorders seems to be the demand of professional agitators and their followers for the release of numbers of prisoners now in custody on charges of sedition or being held as dangerous agitators.

Their tactics bring back to memory those of colonial days in the Argentine. It is believed that no less than 2,000 men make up the bandit gangs. They are taking as many prisoners as possible among the owners and managers of "estancias" with the object of holding them as hostages and demanding their exchange for "reds" now in custody. Work on the big estates has been practically suspended.

Upon landing of the tenth cavalry, sent to protect the ranchers, some of the hostages were given up, the bandits endeavoring to make terms with the commanders but failing to do this. The principal hostages who have been taken and were turned over on this occasion included Mnager Macbey of the Armour frigorifico, Baron Reille and a number of ranch managers and foremen. No sooner had this band moved off than they seized 300 "peones" on various estates and carried them off, together with a quantity of booty.

Here are just a few of the depredations that have put Patagonia on the map of war as an imitator of the Balkan states, Red Russia and South China:

Camp stores were gutted on all roads traveled over by the bandits. At one point the owners of the estacia made a hairbreadth escape while two other hands were killed and others wounded.

In reprisal for landing government troops at Rio Gallegos more estancias in the north of the territory were burned.

The rebels held Paso Ibanez and sacked it. They raided the Armour frigorifico, taking important prisoners, also a number of farmers and the Danish consul, a man over 70 years of age.

The marauders, in addition to stealing large numbers of horses, have acquired 60 motor cars from farms.

The Patagonian Import and Export company's establishment at Lagun Grande was pillaged and fired. At Paso Ibanez all but one of the houses and shops were sacked. Four hundred desperados with 2,000 horses entrenched themselves here nd staged a pitched battle with troops.

BURBANK UNITS OF PROSPERITY HEAR COLBURN

BURBANK, Feb. 10—The feature of the realty board in its regular session Monday was the address by R. W. Colburn of the chamber of commerce and the unanimity of purpose of the two organizations as it manifested itself in matters of concern, matters which have to do with developing the interests of Burbank, and some definite action was taken which it is believed will be a great forward stride for the city.

In the future the realty board will hold its luncheons in the Woman's clubrooms and on the first Monday of the month it will be served at noonday and the third Monday of the month it will be an evening affair, beginning at 6 o'clock.

W. E. Roskum was instructed by the board to communicate with C. C. C. Tatum of Los Angeles, president of the state realty board, and if possible secure his attendance at a meeting in the near future. San Francisco has held the office of the state president for some years but at the recent convention of state realtors, Mr. Tatum was elected to the first position and the office of the organization magazine has also been removed to Los Angeles.

G. A. Walston and son were elected to membership in the realty board.

Mrs. Mary E. C. Groshong of 1011 Olive avenue was the pleasant hostess Tuesday at a noon luncheon to the directors of the Woman's club. The center piece of the attractive appearing dining table was a basket of beautiful pink English daisies. Following the appetizing luncheon, the directors went into regular business session for the discussion of affairs of the club.

LONG LOST LINKS PROVIDED LOCALLY

There is a real, sure-enough link sausage factory in Glendale. C. Caswell, proprietor of the meat department of the Gateway market, corner Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, maintains what is believed to be the only sausage factory in this city. Mr. Caswell has spent several years at the butcher business and he knows all the tricks of the trade, one of which is how to make the finest kind of link sausage you ever ate—the kind that melts in your mouth, that has just the right flavor and exactly the proper consistency.

In every way the meat department conducted by Caswell in this market is strictly modern. These days the buying public demands more than the simple handling of meats—it insists that these meats be of the very highest order and that it be maintained at all times in a perfectly sanitary manner, and that it be offered at a price that is within reach of all. From all of these angles the Caswell market "fills the bill."

You've no business entering the game unless you intend to play it through. For many persons tear up the cards and break up the party when Luck gives them a wallop.

VERDUGO WASH IS IN GOOD SHAPE

Flood Control Work Is Operating Very Efficiently

Superintendent of Plant and Production P. Diederich and City Manager W. H. Reeves visited the Verdugo wash Thursday morning to ascertain how the flood control work recently installed was handling the waters brought down by the recent rains. They reported that the wash is in good condition and is handling the water satisfactorily.

Mr. Reeves in commenting on the flood control situation in Glendale and vicinity, said that the peak of the flood caused by the melting of the snow in the mountains, will not touch Glendale. He said that the present rains and attendant warm weather will cause the snow in the mountains to melt and that this snow water will run to the lowlands along the channel of the San Gabriel river.

Mr. Reeves predicted the heaviest floods will occur at the mouth of the San Gabriel river in the vicinity of Azusa. Verdugo wash is carrying about as much water at present at is will be called upon to handle, he said.

The idea is to put the dogs of war in the pound and issue no checks to redeem them.

MISS BARLOW TO HAVE NEW CAR

Public Health Nurse of City to Make More Speed

Miss Betty Barlow, public health nurse of the city of Glendale, has a standard brand car and is now answering calls in a car that she says is not so large as a Packard but it gets there just the same.

Miss Barlow received her car yesterday and this morning in an unofficial conversation with Police Judge F. H. Lowe received several pointers on the traffic regulations of the city and state. Miss Barlow said that she had christened her new car "Broncho" because it goes ahead by leaps and bounds.

REV. PRESTON GOES EAST

Rev. Harley G. Preston, pastor of the Pacific Avenue Methodist church, who went east to accompany the body of his mother to its last resting place in the old home town in Iowa, has returned from 5500 miles of travel which included a trip to Chicago, and which was marked by contrasts of weather. In Iowa he had to brace himself against a temperature of 14 below zero. In New Orleans, which he visited on the return journey, the mercury registered 70 and it was raining. He saw nothing during his travels to wean him from the Golden state and was very glad to see California again, especially Glendale. He will occupy his pulpit Sunday morning.

Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor of the Baptist church, has been confined to his home for several days with a severe cold. He expects to be in his pulpit on Sunday morning as usual. Last Sunday evening Rev. J. F. Gasser preached for Mr. Ford because of his illness.

There are two kinds of men—those who think a dinner is a failure if they are not called upon to speak, and those who think it is a failure if they are.

It isn't much use to be going if you never arrive.

POSTAL EMPLOYES GET TOGETHER

meeting and bid everyone give himself over to the "good time" spirit.

D. Ripley Jackson, the popular postmaster of Glendale, gave a short talk in which he said in part:

"I want to tell all of you fellows how much I appreciate the cooperation and support you are giving me. I believe each one of you take a personal interest in the operation of this office—you feel that you are responsible for its success. I cannot tell you how much I appreciate this attitude in this regard. You are all showing a spirit that cannot be 'downed.' There are few people in Glendale who realize what a job we are up against in getting the independent postoffice for Glendale on a satisfactory basis, but I know that you fellows will put this thing over in good style."

George Hallet, assistant postmaster referred briefly to the heretofore supposed impossibility of establishing an independent post office in Glendale. He said that this fact had been practically accomplished and that an effective working organization had already been built up, and that everyone seemed to be anxious to cooperate with his fellow workers. He said that plans for a model and strictly modern service were being worked out and that these would be put into effect as soon as possible.

James M. Rhoades, secretary of the Glendale chamber of commerce expressed his surprise at the number of employes in the Glendale postoffice. He was impressed favorably by the good spirit and friendliness that existed among these employes. An organization that cooperates in such a manner cannot help but do excellent work, he said.

Gil A. Cowan congratulated Glendale on securing the independent postoffice and said that he was pleasingly surprised at the spirit of friendliness and cooperation that existed among the employes. He said that Glendale has every reason to feel proud of the excellent postoffice force.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard, whose work has been a delight to Glendale audiences since their return to this city, rendered a number of vocal solo and duet numbers. The surprise of the evening was sprung by Mr. Jackson. There were few present who realized his ability to do vocal "stunts" but he proved that he was a real artist along this line. The fact became known that for several years Mr. Jackson was tenor soloist in one of the largest churches in New York city.

The company was favored by H. H. Frazer, and son, Howard, who gave a number of bag pipe selections, while the postoffice orchestra gave a number of well rendered numbers. The Glen Inn orchestra was also on hand to render musical assistance, which it did in a very pleasing manner. Mayor Spencer Robinson dropped in long enough to dispense a little of his wit and good cheer.

Among those present were Postmaster and Mrs. D. Ripley Jackson, George Hallet, assistant postmaster; F. B. Walker, superintendent of mails; Misses Catherine B. Tyner, Nellie M. Black, Lucile Crowell, Irene L. Rich, Mrs. H. B. Ellis, Mrs. F. V. Hall, Mrs. Harry Glazier; Messrs. J. Boettner, L. C. Martin, N. Ashcraft, E. T. Holmes, C. A. Noyer, Henry Weger, F. C. Stroner, A. B. Kerr, J. F. Crawford, Charles F. Newton, E. C. McFarland, Kenneth Jackson, Harry Glazier, W. S. Gamble, W. W. Hunt, E. Welch, M. M. Standley, O. W. Wright, D. Sullivan, H. H. Frasier, A. S. Formoe, A. R. Faulkner, S. J. Drewett, J. M. Hague, E. J. Hamlin, C. S. Nicholson, A. C. Holcomb, A. S. Wood, E. J. Beilefieldt, J. H. Willock, F. V. Hall, representing the rural carriers' association and "Doc" Ashfork, trouble shooter.

PHYSICIANS' CLUB HOLD MEETING

The Glendale Physicians' club met last evening at the laboratory of Dr. Harrower. Many physicians from surrounding towns were also present to hear Dr. H. A. Zeiler, a prominent specialist of Los Angeles, lecture upon the subject of "Blood Transfusion."

Dr. Zeiler conducts a laboratory in Los Angeles, where he carries on his scientific work and consequently his discourse was based on actual clinical experience.

Other noted physicians will address the members of the club at its bi-monthly meetings.

CENTRAL P. T. A.S CELEBRATE BIRTH

Mrs. Kent, Music Instructor, Discusses Music Memory Contest

At its regular meeting Thursday afternoon the Central avenue Parent-Teacher association celebrated its eighth birthday with Mrs. C. H. Crawford, head of its official board, presiding.

Mrs. Kent, music instructor in the school, told of her program in connection with the music memory contest.

Mrs. E. E. Harwood displayed the pennant and the prize ribbons won by the girls of the school in the inter-city track meet and explained how proud the mothers should be of their daughters.

Mrs. A. A. Barton gave the history of the reading circle and told of the benefit that mothers received from the circle.

Announcement was made of a cafeteria luncheon to be served to the children Tuesday at noon, at which articles would be sold for 5 cents; also that mothers of the sixth grade would contribute the food.

As a patriotic number, members joined in singing "America, the Beautiful."

A table beuatifully decorated with greenery and carrying four large birthday cakes, was brought to the stage. The cakes were frosted in white and each bore eight lighted candles with one large one to grow on.

To Miss Annie McIntyre, the school principal, who was present at the first meeting of the association, was given the honor of blowing out the candles.

Rain prevented the large attendance expected, but those who did come spent a very pleasant social afternoon.

Pupils in Miss Edwards' room won the picture for the coming month, having the largest number of mothers present.

Plans are being made for a program at the school in connection with the music memory contest in which some of the mothers will sing and play some of the selections.

WOMEN PLAY IMPORTANT PART IN TURF RACING

The turf season, now well under way in southern cities, has introduced many women as owners of high-bred horses. Since the early '80s, when the famous "Jersey Lily" Langtry owned, raced and bred a string of thoroughbreds, there has always been a number of the gentler sex directly interested in the "sport of kings." Among the prominent New York women who are active at the various tracks are: Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mrs. E. B. Cassatt, Mrs. George W. Loft and Mrs. Robert L. Gerry. Mrs. C. C. Rumsey hails from Idaho.

HOUSE HIRING IN JAPAN IS JOB FOR DIPLOMAT

Orientals Make It Part of Religious Ceremony to Harass Tenant

TOKIO, Jan. 7 (by mail).—Upon a silk cushion on the matting floor the Bo-san sat cross-legged, his toes folded under him. He clapped his hands and the amah brought more tea and cigarettes. The paper walls of the Bo-san's house were faint protection against the cold of the snowstorm outside. He hustled another habachi, and we huddled over the charcoal brazier's puny glow and talked, through an interpreter, of everything on earth except the business at hand—which was that I wanted to rent the Bo-san's house.

Bo-san means honorable Buddhist priest, and this one was especially honorable, with scores of strange temples and extensive Buddhist properties under his jurisdiction. He was a keen little middle-aged man, steeped in mystical lore. Scrolls of sacred writings he had been studying were strewn about him. The low booming of pagan bells sounded across the temple grounds, and the ghosts of old Japan seemed to cluster about the ancient place.

The Bo-san was intensely interested in this strange newspaper creature from a strange land who wished to become his tenant. He adjusted his picturesque gold-splashed robes and settled himself comfortably on his heels, prepared for a nice, long pow-wow. He asked of Washington and the conference. He asked whether shoes are worn in New York. He was curious to know my paternal grandfathers' real name and why. He asked more questions than the registration boards or passport officers during the war.

The Bo-san then produced a parchment containing Ten Articles of Agreement, written in Japanese characters, which I must accept if I secured the house.

The interpreter read the Ten Points. I would not punch holes in the shoji, or paper walls, and if I did I would replace them with new paper walls. I would not wear savage shoes of western uncivilization on those soft and undefiled tatami, or matting floors. I would not drive nails in the wooden work. I would not, in some freak of fantastic foreign humor or craving for excitement, set the house on fire. I solemnly made all these and a variety of other commitments which grossly violated the Bill of Rights and removed many cherished privileges I had always regarded as inviolable. But, you see, Tokio has passed the house shortage stage. It has a house famine. The public parks are pretty cold for bunking, so I signed on the dotted line, and we drank some more honorable tea and smoked more dishonorable cigarettes and tried to thaw our shivering hands over the hibachi.

Then a grave and serious expression crossed the Bo-san's face. Plainly he was perplexed and sorely troubled, and my heart sank as he turned a gaze of renewed uncertainty upon me. I felt that some new and unexpected objection had suggested itself to my heathen occupation of his Buddhist house and that once more I would join the weary rank of the million or so persons who seem to be looking for houses here.

The Bo-san spoke long and earnestly to the interpreter, and the interpreter thought it over with care. There was evidently some doubt of my reception of the proposition they had in mind. They debated the matter lengthily and then the interpreter blurted out the worst:

"This, you know, is a very high Bo-san," he said. "He is honored that you are interested in his humble house. But that house belongs to the Buddhist church. So the Bo-san has been thinking. It is wise, he says, always to look ahead. The Bo-san does not presume to inquire into your personal religious beliefs—although he takes the liberty of saying he would be joyous should the Great Light of Buddha reach you. He does not incorporate the idea I am about to mention into the formal Ten Points of written ratification. But—the Bo-san should like a gentleman's agreement with you that you will not make a church in the house!"

A great load seemed lifted and a vast contentment came upon me as I thought of the snow storm and the horde of house-hunters from whose ranks I had departed. I told the Bo-san that I would be the last person in the world to double-cross Buddha. The Bo-san beamed and gave me possession.

I can start a sake-joint or a crap-game or a red-revolution headquarters in my house and under the Ten Points and gentleman's agreement the Bo-san is helpless and without recourse. But woe is me if I enter into competition with the Buddhist church.

SLEDGEHAMMER REPLACES "SOUP" IN SAFE BREAKING

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 10.—With the advent here of "the burglar's strong-arm squad," as a band of sledgehammer yeggmen operating in Portland's business district are known, ye olde time safe-cracker sheds burning tears into his boiling "soup" and longs for the dear old days which are no more.

Six safes since November 1 last have fallen before the smashing blows of a gang whose chief weapon is a sledge-hammer, weilded by the brawny arms of the biggest man in the band. No delicate stethesope work for these men, no hole boring followed by judicious use of "soup," as nitroglycerine made by boiling dynamite is known in yegg parlance. It's the triumph of matter over mind, of force over keen fingers, and keenor brains.

Police believe the band is composed of men young to the school of safecracking. They pound the outer door of a safe away with heavy blows, and then put the inner door out of commission with steel drills and small hammers and cold chisels. They leave no clews—even the old-timers admit the lads are smart.

"But it is a dang shame, the way business is on the bum," as a former exponent of the burglarious art informed the police recently. "T'aint what it used to be. I'm ashamed of those fellows."

EVANGELISTIC SERVICE HELD.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe are delightful singers and furnish their audiences with excellent musical programs. The meetings will continue for a month.

BRAZILIAN RULER REMEMBERED IN OLD CAPITOL

Memories of Old Don Pedro Linger in Rio de Janeiro

RIO De JANEIRO (By Mail): Although Brazil has been a republic for many years and men of humbler birth now fill many of her most important public offices, the activities of the old court are yet fresh in popular memory.

Less than two years ago the Brazilians repatriated the ashes of Dom Pedro II and his wife, Empress Theresa Christian, restoring them to throne of memory. Dom Pedro had been compelled to leave the country by the rebellion which culminated in the Brazilian republic.

With Dom Pedro, his empress wife, and his daughter, Princess Isabel, were also obliged to leave and went to Portugal never to return alive to their native country.

Princess Isabel, known as "the Redempteress," having signed a decree freeing slaves in Brazil while she was acting regent during a visit of her father to Europe, died recently in France. The staunchest republicans were among the most sympathetic mourners over her loss.

The press was unanimous in voicing affection and esteem for "the Redempteress." One paper, in an obituary to Isabel, said:

"Perhaps one of the sweetest memories of Brazalian history centers around the Princess Isabel. Her motives, her influence at court and over the nation, her righteous convictions, all sprang from a heart that was noble in fact as well as breeding."

Although it had been the desire of Princess Isabel to be buried at the Chapel at Dreux in France, Brazilians still have hopes that by some decision of her family, her remains might be transferred to the country over which she once reigned. If Isabel's body is brought back, the transference will be made with pomp and the thoughts of many will turn back to the time when this country was an empire and to the court and the social strata which supported it.

CERRITOS BOYS ADD TO LAURELS

Inter-School Champions Are Cleaning Up in Local Talent

Fired by their victories, and with their laurels in the inter-city track tournament still fresh, Cerritos avenue school boys are going forward to further uphold the honor of the school.

Boys of the seventh and eighth grades, in a recent practice game with the team of Rowan street school, Los Angeles, won by a score of 25 to 23.

In the first league game played the early part of the week with Intermediate, the score was a tie at the end of 40 minutes and play had to be extended for five minutes to determine the victors, honors going to Cerritos with a score of 23 to 21.

The team still has two games to play with Eagle Rock and another with Intermediate.

After finishing work in basketball the seventh and eighth grade boys will take up track work for a month and will end the year with indoor baseball. The fourth, fifth and sixth grade boys are now playing indoor ball.

JODON TRIES CAKE

R. P. Jodon of 133 South Kenwood street, had a birthday Thursday. He said it was his 47th. The chief celebration was a birthday cake made by the fair hands of his daughter Dorothy, the first cake she ever made. It proved to be a very fine cake, so good that none was left to tell the tale, and Mr. Jodon is a proud father. He says the years bring compensations.

RECEPTION FOR RETURNED MISSIONARIES

Rev. and Mrs. Louis V. Sinster, who are enjoying a furlough in the United States after strenuous work at Manila, P. I., were week-end guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Brandstater, at their home, 401 West Wilson. They are old friends of the doctor and his wife, who, 15 years ago, were intimately associated with them in Hobart, Tasmania, the birthplace of both Dr. Brandstater and his youngest son.

Saturday afternoon the Brandstater residence was the scene of an informal reception at which Rev. and Mrs. Sinster renewed acquaintance with old friends, and met new ones, who were glad to hear the many interesting things the visitors were able to tell them about affairs in the Philippine islands.

Rev. Sinster has developed, under the general conference of the Seventh-Day Adventist church, a large work covering several provinces in the Philippine islands, with headquarters in Manila during the past 13 years.

A rhyme fest will be a part of the program arranged for the regular meeting of the club next Tuesday evening at its headquarters at 209½ South Brand, when prizes will probably be offered to stimulate competition and brilliancy in the jingle line. The competitors are expected to concentrate on the line of business in which they are employed, but will not be barred from other fields.

Other members arrived in the afternoon, which was spent socially. Due to the unsettled weather conditions there were not as many present as had been expected. Plans were made for an "open house," to be held at the church on February 22. The occasion was also Mrs. Baker's birthday and she received many pretty flowers and gifts.

The Sisterhood class of the First Methodist church met Thursday for a social afternoon in the church parlors. There were about 35 ladies present, which was a good attendance considering the rainy weather conditions. A short business meeting was held, which was followed by a social afternoon in which get-acquainted games were played, as the main purpose of these parties is to have every member get acquainted. At the close of a pleasant afternoon, refreshments were served. Mrs. A. P. Torrey is the teacher of the class.

GLENDALE MOVIE COLONY DISCUSS MURDER

Local Artists of Screen Believe Taylor Killed by Bandit

Motion picture actors and actresses of Glendale so far as interviewed, scout the theories of the Sherlock Holmes sleuths at work on the William Desmond Taylor murder case and incline to the opinion it was a simple hold-up which ended in tragedy with no motive behind it except robbery.

James Neill, for example, is of the opinion it was the work of a plain burglar who had watched the house sufficiently to know that Taylor was alone there. He slipped in while the door was ajar during the leave-taking of Taylor and Mabel Normand and after the return of the director ordered him to throw up his hands. Taylor was a powerful man and an athlete. Instead of submitting he knocked the man down and while on the floor the burglar fired the shot that killed Taylor, the bullet glancing upward and coming out at the neck. Frightened at what he had done, the murderer after composing the body of his victim, made his escape. Such is the opinion of filmdom, Mr. Neill says.

He adds that Taylor was not a Lothario, but uniformly courteous and polite to all women, young and old, his fancy flitting from one to another as he chanced to work with them. He says Taylor was not the man to inspire any deep seated jealousy that would lead to murder, and the foolish letters of which so much has been made were simply the silliness of a childish young girl.

Mrs. James Horne, referring to the matter of William Desmond Taylor, says: "We, Mr. Horne and I, knew him and considered him a wonderful man. It is a terrible thing, especially the cruel insinuations that are being made. Mr. Horne is the director of Mr. McLean, who was a neighbor of Mr. Taylor and to whom the cause is just as mysterious as to any one else. Mrs. McLean saw a man come out of the house about 8:45 but it was probably the chauffeur. It seems strange that such a thing could happen in a fashionable court where so many people were living.

LOCAL REALTORS TAKE OVER LOAN ASS'N BUSINESS

The Southern California-Metropolitan Loan association announces to its many Glendale members and friends that they have arranged with Hayward & McCartney to take charge of their Glendale business. They are now located in their new offices at 142 South Brand boulevard. They feel very fortunate in being able to arrange this connection. Hayward & McCartney need no introduction to the Glendale people.

The Southern California-Metropolitan Loan association is the amalgamation of the Southern California and the Metropolitan, two of the oldest and best established building loan associations in the state. Their record of 35 years in business, each year showing progress until now they have total resources of over $2,200,000, is a worthy one.

During this period not once has it been necessary to resort to the "reserve fund" to make good a loss, Their method of placing loans protects those who have invested, and guarantees to the borrower a house built to the last letter of the specifications. A service equivalent to that of an architect is thus rendered.

Several saving plans are offered to the investor, principally the certificates of deposit in which 6 per cent dividends are paid semi-annually, and the membership shares on which never less than 7 per cent compounded semi-annually has been paid. Provisions are made for withdrawal before maturity upon demand, with 5 per cent per annum for the time the money has been invested.

The people of Glendale are urged to support this institution, which helps to stimulate good business by investing these savings to enable home building to continue, providing work for the lumberman, painter, plumber, brick manufacturer, decorator, contractor, plasterer, carpenter and indirectly every business in the city is benefitted. For further information you are invited to call upon Hayward & McCartney.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT TABERNACLE

A very interesting program is being planned for Sunday to be given at the Gospel Tabernacle, 310 East Chestnut street, with Rev. T. R. Francis in charge. The general theme of the meeting will be "The Working Power of Prayer." At 9:45 in the morning the subject will be "Prayer as a Working Force, of Wielding the Forces of Intercession." The service of worship will be held at 11 a. m., and the subject will be "The Call for Prayer Laborers." In the afternoon at 2:30 Dr. F. W. Farr, Pastor of Calvary Baptist church, Los Angeles, will speak. At 3 p. m. Rev. H. C. Waddell will speak on "Linking Our Prayer Forces—A Plea for Prayer Unity." "Victory Prayer and Prayer Evangelism" will be discussed at the evening service. The services all during the day will be an appeal to all who honor the Lord Jesus Christ who desire the unity of believers in the spirit of true prayer.

H. AND H. STORE OPENS TOMORROW

The formal opening of the H. and H. men's furnishing store, 148 South Brand boulevard, will take place tomorrow. An exceedingly fine stock of men's furnishing goods has been secured, and will be placed on sale tomorrow morning. Everything in this stock is of the best, and the prices at which these articles will be sold promise to be a revelation to the people of Glendale.

Mr. Syms was for several years in the printing business in Boise, Idaho, and Mr. Brown spent several years as a traveling salesman, during which time he represented some of the largest men's furnishing firms in the country. Both of these gentlemen have had considerable experience in the men's furnishing business.

Mr. Syms has just purchased a home at 814 East Wilson street, while Mr. Brown is located in Glendale avenue.

CITY COUNCIL REJECTS PIPE BIDS

work to include grading, oil and rock surface, sidewalks and curbs. These were referred to the city engineer for checking.

Two important ordinances were passed pertaining to the maintaining of motor bus lines in Glendale. The first of these reduced the bond necessary for the operation of a bus line of this kind from $10,000 to $5,000, and the second reduced the license of busses carrying less than eight passengers from $40 to $10 per year. The license of busses carrying eight or more passengers was permitted to remain at $40 per year.

A deed from Sophie St. John bearing the final signature necessary for the improving and widening of Broadway from the present western terminus of the improved section to San Fernando road, was received. The receipt of this deed was a matter of rejoicing on the part of the council. Broadway west of the improved section is not as wide as the paved section and deeds to a strip of land at the south side of the street along the unpaved portion were required before the work of improving this strip could go forward. Now that the required signatures are in hand the council will rush the work on the road as rapidly as possible, realizing that this is the most important proposed piece of road work in Glendale today.

An ordinance was passed calling an election in the Sierra avenue improvement district No. 5. This election will determine whether or not water pipes will be laid in this section.

The reason for the abandonment of the proceedings for improving Los Angeles street, 150 feet north of Park avenue, is that the parties who were interested in a little misunderstanding concerning this improvement have come to a peaceful agreement. The matter will be permitted to rest until a further request for action has been made by the interested parties.

That Justin avenue from Glenwood to Eighth street, Lexington drive from Pacific to Chester, and Belmost from Lomita south, will be improved as soon as possible was stated by members of the council. Last night resolutions of intention to improve these streets were passed.

A petition was presented by Councilman Kimlin, signed by a number of property owners on Granada, Lomita and Maple streets, asking that portions of those roadways be improved. Mr. Kimlin stated that it is very necessary that these streets be improved as requested, as such improvement will greatly facilitate the drainage problem in this section. The city engineer and city attorney were instructed to start proceedings immediately for the improvement of these streets.

A communication from A. G. Smith requested that the council give him permission to build at a closer range at 202 East Elk street, basing his request on the fact that this is a business territory. If permission is granted it is Mr. Smith's intention to erect a 12-unit bungalow court to cost between $12,000 and $15,000. The matter was referred to the building inspector for investigation and report.

HOLZMAN STORE HAS DUPLICATE AT SAN PEDRO

Coast Town Newspapers Welcomes Mercantile Company There

Friends and patrons of the Glendale Dry Goods Company, 114 East Broadway, which is operated by Arthur, Joseph and Minnie Holzman, will be interested to know that a dry goods concern operated by Arthur Holzman in San Pedro is also flourishing. In a story preceding the opening of a new store which was taken possession of last Monday, the San Pedro Daily News said:

"San Pedro has always been proud of the Holzman store, and the new store will add even more zest to this good opinion. Arthur Holzman has built up his business on quality, integrity and service. Many new stores have been added in the new store, and the stock has been increased by many thousands of dollars.

"Arthur Holzman's success in San Pedro is not a wit greater than the wonderful progress that is being made by the Glendale Dry Goods company. Since coming here this company has experienced a wonderful growth, and the prospect for future development is exceedingly bright."

The choral club is open to all women in the valley who sing and it is hoped that there will be a large membership. Beautiful part songs are being rehearsed, to be given at a concert in the spring. Officers recently elected are: President, Mrs. Albert Westmoreland; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. E. Morgan Isaac; librarian, Miss Luanna McNary. A DISH THAT IS FIT TO SET BEFORE THE KING—is a deliciously roasted suckling pig from the RANCH MEAT MARKET at 1208 North San Fernando road. They raise their own pigs—and thus you are assured of the very best, although they maintain an exceptionally low standard of prices. Imagine delectable pigs—ready for cooking as low as $2.50! It seems almost incredible, doesn't it, but then you know the prices on all their other meats are comparatively as reasonable! It takes but about five minutes to drive out there—and think of the tempting Sunday dinner you may serve—so different from the regular Sunday roasts! Call Glendale 1455-W and order yours saved!

A SUIT OR STREET DRESS in order to look well must be always cleaned and pressed. I'd let the BRAND CLEANERS of 217 South Brand boulevard do all of my cleaning and pressing, if I were you, as they are truly experts in their line—and maintain a high standard of work as well as unusually low prices!

"THE WAY TO A MAN'S HEART is through his stomach"—so we're told, and, my dear, that should really be warning enough to you! Too great care cannot be exercised in the selection of the food which you feed him! That's why I always do all my buying at NUSSBAUM'S GROCERY AND MEAT MARKET, 244 North Brand boulevard—for they carry only the very best of groceries and meats! In their meat department today I saw perfectly delicious fresh hams at 23c the pound, tempting pure pork sausage (for Sunday morning breakfast) at 25c a pound, while a wonderful shoulder of pork roast I bought at 18c the pound. Then, too, they've a fresh supply of imported Fancy Irish mackerel at only 20c each. Mr. Kriske is always certain to have the very best to be had in the way of fresh chickens, too! SPRING-TIME MEANS NEW HAT-TIME! But have you seen the lovely new hats which are being shown for spring at the YARBROUGH HAT SHOP—108 West Broadway? Mrs. Yarbrough has a wonderful selection of bewitching chapeaux in a perfect riot of radiant colors! To be sure, black is still in the lead for evening and "dress" wear—but the pretty little spring-time modes are shown in the beautiful blues, reds and greens! Some are large, others rather "smallish"—but all express that indefinable note of distinction that is characteristic of Yarbrough Hats! Stop in and see them—and don't forget that in La Vanity Shop—Mrs. Nye is specializing in marcel waving and manicuring!

ENVIRONMENT, to my mind, means everything! If your home is pleasant, warm, comfortably furnished and permeating an atmosphere of prosperity, the hours you spend within its walls will be happy ones, will they not? There is a certain "livableness" about a home that can only be created by the little personal touches here and there that express the personality of its mistress—that of a homemaker! Here and there in the shops of Glendale you'll find these little conveniences and comforts that will tend to change a mere "house" into a "home"—for, after all, "Home is where the heart is"! Do come with me, my dear, that I may prove my contention that right here in Glendale you'll find the very things you're needing in your home—and at prices you can easily afford to pay for them! For the merchants of Glendale are here to stay—and they are truly interested in seeing this beautiful city of homes progress—and in seeing those homes in turn become more beautiful. It is to your interest as well as theirs that you adopt our motto—

A GOOD HOME ON A GOOD STREET
There are many good long, short and wide streets in Glendale. They all have some good homes on them. But there is one good long wide street that has all good homes on it. That street is Central Ave.

Would you like to own on N. Central Ave., a nice 5-room bungalow, close in, with a pretty lawn with pretty shrubs and flowers and with many kinds of bearing fruit trees in the back yard?

Circumstances compells me to make a quick move north and this bungalow, with or without the furniture, will be sold at a sacrifice price. Local arrangements will be made for satisfactory cash and monthly payments.

The sacrifice price will not permit listing, and paying an agent's commission, nor is it convenient to show the property except by appointment. If you are a bona fide buyer I will be pleased to make an appointment with you.

A WEAK SPINE
A deformed, rigid, and out of shape spine, is the cause of many internal afflictions. It is manifested by wry neck, unevenly drooped shoulders, protruding shoulder blade, stooping and sway back, one high hip seemingly due to a short leg; even difficulties of the lower limbs, joints, and feet are due to such weakness; a drawing pain in the back, hip and thighs is symtomatic. LITTLE ENDURANCE BY HELPING NATURE'S EFFORTS TO RESTORE will strengthen and straighten your spine. I will help you, advise you how to do it. SUITE 509, GARLAND BLDG., 740 S. Bdwy. SAN RAFAEL NET TOURNAMENT OPEN

Hotel Event Has Many Entries for Initial Events Today

SAN RAFAEL, Feb. 10.—The annual tennis tournament staged by the Hotel Rafael will take place here beginning tomorrow, and continuing during the following day.

The events will consist only of doubles—one event for men, the other for women.

A large number of entries have been received, the management reports, and most of the prominent players of the state are gathered here to compete.

According to the preliminary layout, such players as John Strachan, Willis Davis, Wallace Bates, Phil Neer, Helen Wills, Winifred Suhr, Mrs. Jean Kullman, Charlotte Hosmer, Jimmy Davies, and others of note will compete.

Robert Kinsey is chairman of the committee on arrangements, and his assistants are Mrs. T. D. Fletcher, Bill Parker, Howard Kinsey, and Homer Devinson.

The hotel courts were refinished last year with new surfacing, and are in the very best of condition.

A philosopher must get a good deal of fun by looking straight into the minds of small men who are trying to impress the world with their bigness, and laughing at the queer antics the small men's thoughts are performing.

EXPLORER AMUNDSEN AND ARCTIC WAIFS HE HAS ADOPTED

Captain Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole and explorer of the North Polar regions, is shown here with two children of the Tajukski tribe, whom he found starving in Siberia. He has adopted them and before starting on his perilous five-year drifting journey over the roof of the world from Alaska to Norway, will send them to Normay to be educated. He is shown here with Cakonita, three years old, a full-blooded member of the Tajuktski tribe, and Carmilla Carpendalé, eleven years old, daughter of a Russian trader and a woman of that strange race. Captain Amundsen believes they are the first members of the tribe ever to set foot upon this continent. The photograph was made in New York City.

BROOKLYN IS SOLD FOR JUNK

Admiral Schley's Flagship Is Being Striped in Oakland Yard

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 10.—Admiral Schley's flagship, the "Brooklyn," which became famous at the Battle of Santiago during the Spanish-American war, is now in the process of being junked at the docks of the American Iron and Metal company here.

The "Brooklyn" was recently sold at an auction by the navy department, and the Oakland company were the purchasers when the bids were opened.

The "Brooklyn" was recently towed from her place in the row of "has-beens" at Mare Island, and taken to the company's wharf here.

It took five tugs to handle what was once the fastest and most powerful of Uncle Sam's battle fleet.

The vessel was the center of a Court of Inquiry dispute following the battle of Santiago, when Admiral Sampson failed to mention Admiral Schley's work during the battle. This caused a storm of criticism from Schley's friends, who claimed he was responsible for winning the battle, and that Admiral Sampson was a number of miles away when the battle was actualy being fought.

As a token of their esteem for Admiral Schley, and as a remembrance of the ship's most famous battle, the "gobs" of the vessel who were with her in the fight had the date "July 3, 1898" imprinted on the forward deck.

The date still remains, and has always been kept freshly painted by the sailors aboard the vessel from that time until the crew was taken off and it was junked.

The bell of the Brooklyn was removed, and will be sent to a museum in Washington where the bells of the famous vessels of Uncle Sam's fleet are kept.

LA CRESCENTA NEWS AND NOTES

The brotherhood of the Community church held their regular weekly meeting at the church last Saturday evening, with President A. Burt in the chair. After the business session, supper was served and it was the consensus of opinion of all present that it was the most enjoyable meeting of the year. H. R. Steeve and E. Keith were the new members enrolled.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Culberson were hosts to the Tuesday Bridge club at an attractively appointed dinner, Tuesday evening. Places were marked for Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Anderson, H. A. Baldridge, E. N. Nettleton, T. S. Minford, Mrs. H. Bastable, Mrs. M. Adams, Miss D. Bastable, Miss Janet Culberson, Donald Dewey and Dean Culberson. High scores were made by Mrs. Bastable, Mrs. Baldridge, Mr. Dewey and Mr. Minford.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Metz and Miss Lena Krug, all of Omaha, arrived here Tuesday for their usual winter stay.

Some fifty children of the local school accompanied by the teachers and parents visited the Mission play at San Gabriel, today.

The guests and members of the La Crescenta Woman's club, who weathered the stormy Wednesday to attend the regular meeting of the club at the school auditorium, felt they were greatly rewarded in the privilege of hearing the splendid talk by Mr. Heneritta P. Capp of Barker Bros., on interior decoration. The club members present joined the president, Mrs. F. H. Anderson in a request that Mrs. Capp give them another afternoon later in the year, if possible, to which Mrs. Capp said she would consider. The president announced a card day February 25, afternoon and evening. Reservations for tables can be made of Mrs. C. E. Culberson and Mrs. E. N. Nettleton. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mesdames E. L. Collins, H. Carpenter and T. Bonetto. The tea table was particularly attractive and presided over by Mrs. C. E. Culberson.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fowler will be happy to learn of their arrival from Chicago. They are domiciled in their home on Los Angeles and Honolulu avenues.

R. E. Steeve of Los Angeles and Montrose avenue, left Thursday for Youngstown, Ohio. Mr. Steeve will visit his mother who is seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul La Gue are guests of their mother, Mrs. V. La Gue of Montrose avenue.

Henry Peters of Birmingham, England, has purchased a lot in the Brown Janvier tract and will begin the erection of a home at once. Mr. Peters is an airplane builder and expects to make this his permanent home.

CONCERT AT SCHOOL

BURBANK, Feb. 10.—Two lectures and a splendid concert were enjoyed by a large audience Monday evening at the auditorium of the grammar school when Dr. E. C. Fortin, physician and surgeon formerly of Colorado, and Louis G. Guernsey, prominent Los Angeles attorney, lectured on the subject of "Chiropractic," and the "Four Embers" quartet gave a high class concert.

WEEDS LEASE RANCH

BURBANK, Feb. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. George B. Weed of 1221 West San Fernando boulevard, have leased their chicken ranch and will move to Los Angeles where they will be nearer their employment. Mr. and Mrs. Gower have leased the ranch.

An insurance agent must have harsh thoughts when after fighting with a prospect for weeks and finally getting his application all signed for a fat policy, the doctor refuses to pass the prospect.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

IMPORTANT LITTLE THINGS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

Patricia Grant was a most methodical little soul and sometimes her family was on the point of ridicule because Patricia was so painfully "particular."

One winter the ranch country in which they lived was swept with influenza. In the Grant family four were ill at the same time and to Patricia fell the work of caring for them.

It was after she had whipped the little household into a temporary hospital, and was running a schedule of treatments and diets and baths and medicine with clock-like regularity that her family, in spite of its sickness, began to take notice of Patricia.

She was a little pale perhaps from lack of sleep, but very determined and insistent, and punctual to a degree. And she was inclined to laugh when her mother said one afternoon:

Mother is Appreciative

"My dear, I want to tell you how I have appreciated the fact that you have never once sat down upon that squeaky rocker. At first I simply dreaded the inevitable moment when you should sit in it—and rock. It is a wrecked old chair and has never failed to annoy me when I was ill."

"I never dreamed of sitting in a rocking chair, or rocking, either," said Patricia. "I remember how it used to madden me last year when I was ill. And the door that creaked, do you remember?"

"What happened to it? I never heard it once when my head was so bad," said the mother who was getting better.

"I couldn't find any sewing machine oil, so I rubbed some soap on the hinges. That took care of the creak."

"Be careful, dear. That is your grandmother's old walnut table," warned her mother, as Patricia placed a tray on the table in the corner of the room. On the tray was a pitcher of steaming hot milk and four shining glasses. For Patricia gave her four invalids hot milk every afternoon at exactly 4 o'clock.

Patricia Had Been Careful

"The table is safely covered with layers of newspapers and a piece of oilcloth, mother dear," said Patricia patiently. "I took the fine linen cover off and put a clean towel in its place, over newspaper and oilcloth, the first day the family was sick. I just had to have some place to set hot water and things. And I didn't want to ruin the table."

Her mother sighed, happily. Methodical daughters are treasures after all.

Then, because the family was nearly able to sit up and take notice, her aunt said:

"My dear, don't pour that hot milk into those thin glasses. It will crack them."

"I heated the glasses, and they won't crack. See?" And Patricia illustrated, by pouring the steaming fluid into the thin glasses. They did not crack. So her aunt was pacified.

Explains About Medicines

And that evening when Patricia carried her father's medicine to him, measured carefully into a tiny glass, accompanied by a small pitcher of ice water to dilute it slightly, he said, tossing off the bitter draught with a wry face. "Perhaps you will tell me, my dear, why you always dilute this bitterness with ice water, while my bedtime medicine, which is outrageously nasty, you pour down my throat undiluted."

"Because the bed-time medicine is a cough mixture. And one never dilutes a cough medicine, because the syrup is supposed to lubricate the irritated membrane of the throat," explained the methodical daughter, gathering up the empty medicine glasses and carrying them away to be washed and returned to the medicine cupboard.

RE-FORESTRY IN ENGLAND

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 10.—Steady shipments of tree seeds, mostly Douglas fir, Sitka spruce, and hemlock, are leaving British Columbia for the British Isles, where they are being used in the re-forestration work now being pushed forward in England.

Edward Walsmley, assistant crown timber agent, is directing the work of gathering the seeds for shipping. They are the product of the government extracting plant operated by the department of public works.

The most recent seed shipment comprised 1800 pounds of fir seeds, the same amount of spruce, and 100 pounds of hemlock. British Columbia seeds are going to Australia and New Zealand as well as to the mother country, and requests have been made for supplies by Finnish, Peruvian and other nations' forestry departments as well.

SELF-OPERATING MOVIE

SEASIDE, Ore., Feb. 10.—A "pay as you leave" movie theatre is being operated here under the management of D. J. Callahan. The Strand, as Callahan's theatre is named, has been under this novel method of collecting toll since January 1, 1922.

One enters the show free of charge, views the film offerings, and then in a box at the door the fan drops on his way out what he believes the show to be worth to himself and each member of his party. Callahan admits his gate receipts from this method of operation exceed those under the old "pay as you enter" system.

Two strikes and three balls have now been called on the railroad controversy.

GEORGE'S GRIMNESS DUE TO TEETH?

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 10.—It depends upon what kind of false teeth, if nay, George Washington wore, whether he resembled the cheery countenance we now behold upon our cheaper brand of stamps. History says that false teeth caused the slight lip protuberance noted in Washington.

Dr. Fred E. Gulick informed the Rotary club here recently that modern dentistry has revolutionized the fitting of false teeth. In years gone by dentists practiced a catch-as-catch-can method of fitting, holding that the principal duty of the tooth was to chew. In short, utility was their creed. The color of the patient's eyes, the length of his nose, his hair, his general facial physiology, entered not into their calculations.

"But nowadays," declared Dr. Gulick, "all of this is considered. We proceed carefully and give the patient teeth which will leave his appearance normal. Types are considered and careful measurements, combined with the study of the patient himself, end in fitting teeth which defy detection. Your friends will recognize you as well as when you sported your natural set.

"And what is more important, perhaps," concluded Dr. Gulick, "they chew, gentlemen, they chew."

The injunction, "Bear ye one another's burdens," doesn't mean that you should unload your burdens upon others if you can carry them yourself.

Burbank News

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Ashabranner attended a Bohemian spaghetti dinner Saturday night at the Smart studio, art center headquarters, Los Angeles.

Richard Gunneson who has recently purchased the Ramsey apartments, has returned from a short trip to San Francisco where he went to ship his household goods to this city.

Mrs. P. S. Claytor of Orange Grove avenue has been called to San Diego by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Lathrop. A number of people here will remember Mrs. Lathrop as she spent some time with Mrs. Claytor last fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sence of 915 Angeleno avenue, were host and hostess Tuesday night at an elaborate dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Seraphim Pla of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lewis of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Pla were formerly residents of this city and well known here as musical artists.

G. T. Fraser of Olive avenue, 600 block, has sold his residence to T. B. Young who took possession Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Young have been living for some time at the Gerda apartments. Mr. and Mrs. Fraser will be located temporarily on Roycourt avenue until they can be suited in a place for purchase.

A delightful social event will be the party to be given Sunday night by Mrs. Philip Zeiss in commemoration of the birthday anniversary of her sister, Mrs. Floyd D. Leach of Los Angeles. The affair will be in the nature of a musicale as there will be present another of the hostess' sisters, Julie Kellar Flood, publicly known as Julie Kellar, who is a harpist of note. Her husband, a well known baritone, will assist in the entertainment of the guests, who will number about 20. Individual birthday cakes will be served. The rooms will be decorated in spring flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ramsey who recently sold their apartment house on Orange Grove avenue and moved to Los Angeles, are now moving from there to Glendale where they have bought property which they expect to begin improving at once with a hotel of rather an unusual idea. The building will be but two stories. The upper one will be built with a room and bath to a suite, to be occupied by business and professional men who have no home. The first floor will be constructed with a full suite of living rooms which will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey and the remainder of the floor will be similar to the second story and is designed for occupancy by women or couples. There will be no public dining room. The location is only a block off of Broadway and on Kenilworth avenue.

The Once Over

OPEN GOLOSHES

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Flap! Flap! Flap! the girls are marching,
Flap! Flap! Flap! they march along;
With goloshes open wide,
They essay the flapper's stride,
As they "flappergast" the rubber-necking throng.

The feet of the modern flapper now rattle more than her head.

* * *

Reason: Open goloshes openly arrived at.

* * *

The young lady now clatters down the street with her overshoes wide open and the tops and buckles flapping in the breeze.

* * *

A pair of stormshoes now make more noise than a pair of stormdoors. More noise, in fact, than a storm itself.

* * *

Ma and pa would have a quieter life is they lived with a featherweight gate.

* * *

'Sterribul! What? Can't the goloshes be buckled? Certainly! The girls don't want to buckle them. It's the style. Some eight-toothed stenographer got up late one morning, hurried to work without buckling her goloshes, and inside of forty-eight hours her idea had become a fad!

* * *

Gloves that only cover two fingers and fur pieces that follow the owner on a sled may be the next novelties of the season.

* * *

Already the men are talking of wearing buttonless spats and derby hats open top and bottom.

* * *

It looks like a loose season.

* * *

By summer it may be the style to wear hookless evening gowns, allowing the wearer to wallow around half in and half out of her garment. Summer frocks may be worn only two-thirds over the head. The buttonless bathing suit is a possibility.

* * *

'Sawful!

* * *

Chicago girls are using their goloshes to indicate whether they are engaged or not. Buckled goloshes mean "I'm engaged." Unbuckled goloshes mean "Unattached."

* * *

Presumably the young man who wins a girl in that city now buys her a pair of goloshes instead of a ring. Which is not a bad idea. Goloshes will carry you farther in stormy weather than jewelry.

* * *

But imagine what it may lead to. For instance:

One golosh unbuckled, one buckled: My engagement is broken.

Fox fur removed from neck and tied to right leg: I would like to be taken to dinner.

One foot in a muff, both hands in a golosh: I would converse with thee.

Hat worn on left shoulder: I am married.

Hat worn on right shoulder: I am divorced.

Umbrella worn as a hat pin: I would like to see a good show.

Handbag flying from either ear: Let's go to a dance.

Corset cover worn as a sash: My father has money.

Handbag carried in teeth: I'm dying for an auto ride.

Pink pajamas carried on a string and flown as a kite: I'd like some good old-fashioned beer.

* * *

'Sgreat idea!

The Barton Bedtime Stories

WEREN'T THE SEALS S'PRISED!

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"So the seals found our great-great-grandparents, Ripple Beaver's and mine, afloat on the only Ark they had through the Big Flood, a twiggy old oak tree. Were they very much scared?" asked the wide-eyed Widow Squirrel. She was so excited! It all sounded so very real, just what folks would do, you know.

"Who, the seals?" asked the red dog. "Sure. They must have been, just like I'm scared of you. If they're cousins of the bears they can't be very much bigger than I am."

"Shucks!" snapped the Widow. "Dr. Muskrat knows who I mean."

"Scared?" grinned the old paddlepaw. "Just as scared as you are of Barker Pal, here. Just because they were so big. For the First Squirrel knew those great, clumsy seals could not climb up into the springy little twigs she was skipping about on. And the poor little fellow with the sore tail was too sick to care what happened.

"Indeed, the minute the visitors popped their round heads out of the water beside him, the First Squirrel squalled out, 'You get right out of here and leave him alone. He's sick, and I won't have you bothering him.' (Dr. Muskrat gave such a good imitation of the widow herself when she flies into a tantrum that the others had burst right out laughing. Even the widow smiled.) But when he went on he spoke in a very different voice.

"'What's the matter with him?' It was the lady seal who asked that, so sympathetic and all. And the sick little beast tried to show her, but he couldn't even move,

"So the seals found our great-grandparents."

'cause his tail was so big it anchored him.

"'Whoosh!' spluttered the big he-seal. 'Fan me with my flipper if ever I saw such a looking thing. Why hasn't he a mud poultice on it?'

"'Mud poultice?' shrilled the First Squirrel. 'Mud poultice, indeed! And where would I get one?'

"'That's so,' said the he-seal. 'But why didn't he stick it into the Flood?'

"'Because those fishes would catch hold of it and pull him all the way in.'

"'That's so, too,' snorted the big he-seal disapprovingly. 'But what are two helpless little things like you doing way out here all by your lones? Why didn't you stay where you belonged?'

"'Stay where we belonged?' chattered the indignant First Squirrel. 'And where else would that be?'

"'Aboard the Ark, of course!' replied the seal."

NEXT STORY: THE SEALS PLAN A JOKE ON SHEM.

NEW TUNNELS TO CROSS THE HUDSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Breaking ground for the two Hudson River tunnels connecting Jersey City and New York is expected to take place about March 4.

The land work from the Manhattan side, from West Street to the pier heads, has already been completed at a cost of $650,000. The six points are the two pierheads of West and Canal streets and the two pier heads off Jersey City, and the landwork out of the pier heads.

The tunnel contract is estimated at $22,000,000. The total cost will be more than $28,000,000. The construcetion is to be of cast iron and concrete.

It is expected that the vehicular tunnel, on completion, will take care of 15,000,000 vehicles a year. The present traffic of vehicles across the Hudson is about 48,000 a day. By the time the tunnel is opened, it is estimated that traffic will have doubled.

The project to build the two tunnels began in July, 1919. Surveying of Canal street was completed in 1920, and the Manhattan section of the tunnels, out to the end of the piers, was finished recently.

A dog can say more with his tail in a minute than the average man can express with his mouth in a week.

MIDWAY FEATURE IS NOVELTY OF ORANGE SHOW

Yearly Event To Be More Splendid Than Ever Before

Workmen are busily engaged preparing the exhibits to be shown this year in the Twelfth National Orange Show, which will be held in San Bernardino, February 17 to 27. The displays this year will be in more magnificence and in greater numbers than ever before.

The stamp of quality is being placed upon the exhibits by a number of nationally known experts who are on the ground supervising the construction of the feature exhibits which will be entered by various municipal and civic organizations throughotu the state.

The show this year will be much larger than in past years. A new tent, which will house the fruit and feature displays, has been purchased by the orange show officials. Two other tents will house the industrial and automobile exhibits.

A midway in mammoth proportions will be constructed on the shores of a miniature lake. Carnival stunts are promised for the visitors in this zone at all times during the ten days of the show.

The automobile show will contain the premier display of advance models of all makes of cars. The auto section this year will take the place of a regular automobile show in Southern California during the middle of the winter.

Everything had been done to make the great meeting a success. A large hall and a good speaker had been engaged.

When the latter arrived he seemed in a crabbed frame of mind. He beckoned the chairman.

"I should like to have a glass of water on my table, if you please," he said.

"To drink?" was the chairman's idiotic question.

"Oh, no," was the sarcastic retort; "when I've been speaking for half an hour I do a high dive."

WOMEN DRESS FOR MASCULINE EYES IN NEW YORK

Survey of What Eve of Gotham Is Wearing Now

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (United Press).—That women dress primarily to please men is a well established fact. It ever has been and ever will be. When Eve, after searching through the Garden of Eden finally decided upon a fig leaf for adornment, you can be sure that some time during their strolls Adam had said that the fig leaf was a pretty little leaf.

And so it is today. Whether it be the gay Adonis whom she is trying to land, or the little old hardworking husband, always in the back of every woman's head, she bears the image of some man when choosing a gown. Many a little grey mouse of a woman goes about in silken hose anh short skirts when her shin bones would be a lot more comfortable in heavy woolens, simply because she knows that fond husband adores transparency. And there are some of us who feel that we must tone down to suit our male attachments. Many a woman has felt the call of the bobbed head, but has not obeyed the call because her husband refused to be seen with her in the decollete head dress. Where is the woman who does not feel that she looks well in short skirts? Yet there are some who have felt dowdy these four years in long ones to please a husband who seemed otherwise perfectly normal.

The afternoon dress is the one garment that a woman can choose to please her very self. Her one salvation for self expression lies in it. In it she can display herself as she would like to be as there are few men in these busy ante-war days cavorting around to tea dansants and matinees. It is a peculiar individuality which can not find expression in the wide variety of afternoon frocks that one has to choose from this season.

Perhaps the best type of afternoon gown for general utility is the crepe gown. Heavy crepe de chenes and crepe Roma are taking the place of the Canton crepes and georgette crepes. When combined with lace, crepe Rome makes an exquisite costume and one that will fit into the most formal gatherings. Brown lace combined with a heavy crepe de chene also makes a successful combination. Czecho-Slovakian embroideries and gaudy colored bands produce a peasant type, that is extremely becoming to the dark complected woman. One lovely model of this sort is made of navy blue duvetyn with bands of red, blue, green and orange embroidery attached three inches above the long waist line at the side seams and extending to the hem in a side panel effect. The sleeves of this costume are made in flowing peasant style and banded in the same embroidered material from the shoulder seams down to the sleeve ends. Side view of this gown gives one straight line of embroidery from neck line to skirt hem.

For the woman who goes out a great deal but has small means to use for her gowning there is the ever lovely black gown of heavy satin or velvet. When made in simple lines and untrimmed, a chain of colored beads, a girdle or a chiffon sash changes it into an entirely different costume. The long shoulder can be made so that sleeves of different colors can be basted in at will and when left off entirely the short sleeved effect is obtained.

The wide neck line continues in usage on most afternoon frocks. Also the long waist line still predominates.

Lace is constantly appearing in new forms. Wool laces on glack velvet makes a pretty contrast. A wide stripe of ecru wool lace running from the center neck line to the hem is tremendously effective.

Wooden beads combined with patent leather applique or colored embroidery are a very new trimming.

REGISTRATION IS GETTING RESULTS

Registrar Lyons Informs Press He Is Satisfied With Work

In a recent letter received by the Glendale Daily Press from Registrar of Voters D. B. Lyons, it was stated that the work of registration of the voters of Glendale has been, and is being conducted in the manner in which experience has proven to be the best for all concerned. A house-to-house canvass has been made and now deputies are stationed at convenient places, such as the Pacific Electric station, the city hall, old postoffice building and what was formerly Tropico, so that those who did not register when the canvass was made, may do so now. Mr. Lyons also stated that his deputies (all residents of this city) have proved very capable and faithful and the work of registration has been carried on in an intelligent manner.

A young man was walking along a lonely stretch of seashore when the incoming tide washed up a bottle. He picked it up and saw a slip of paper inside. For several minutes he refrained from extracting the message, while toying with the idea that it must have been scrawled by some wreck survivor in an open boat or on a raft.

Finally he broke the bottle's neck, cut his finger on a piece of jagged glass, and read: "Whoever discovers this bottle will find all the beer gone."

Truths in Epigram

Liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint.— Webster (1782-1852).

Can there be a more horrible object in existence than an eloquent man not speaking the truth.—Carlyle (1795-1881).

Individualities may form communities, but it is institutions alone that can create a nation.—Disraeli (1804-1881).

DUTY OF THE SENATE

Robert Underwood Johnson says that the whole world would come near moral and financial bankruptcy if obligations assumed by this country at the disarmament conference should fail of endorsement by the senate. In the same address he declared that the United States ought to refuse recognition to the Russian soviet government. The second point will win the approval of Americans generally, but the first was the more important.

Such a breach of good faith as would be involved in senate failure to ratify the findings of the conference hardly is to be imagined. It could be deemed nothing less than monstrous. It would be to foredoom any overture that the United States might make at a future time. The fact cannot be forgotten that the whole plan of the conference was of American origin. The policy followed was definitely outlined by the able representatives of this country. The main proposals came from them, and the ready acquiescnce of the powers was an evidence of confidence most gratifying.

For the senate to reject the findings would be the declaration that this government had been insincere, that it had been engaging in an elaborate and wholly useless attempt to deceive the world. It would cause measureless national humiliation. It must, in truth, be regarded as unthinkable.

DRAGGING IN POLITICS

The governor of Illinois must stand trial on a charge involving misuse of public funds. In every possible way he sought to keep the case out of court. He said there was nothing in it, and that it was a mere phase of the political activity that was seeking to make him a victim.

Now the governor of Mississippi is charged with a serious crime brought by a woman formerly in his employ. Again the cry of politics is raised. He denounces the action as that of a blackmailer, and the design, the desire to accomplish his ruin.

It is true that any man in public office, or seeking office, is liable to vicious assault. This is one of the regrettable facts in American life. It has discouraged many a good man from accepting a position for which he was qualified, and in which he might have given excellent service. Nobody desires to have to devote any part of his energy to defending a reputation that is clean save for the mud and muck with which the unclean hands of the enemy have sought to plaster it.

When men in office are openly accused, indicted in legal form, and compelled to make formal answer, the process is in no sense complete with the assertion that "it is only politics." There is danger in making specific allegations of wrong-doing. Immoral politicians might resort to abuse, to insinuation, to covert hints. To think that they would come into the open with utterly slanderous charges gives them credit for a courage they are not likely to possess.

However unenviable the positions into which the two governors have been forced, there is before each the duty of vindicating himself. If able to do this, then his accusers may be obliged to take their places at the bar of justice.

THE HOUSE OF CARDS

At an investigation concerning the collapse of a Brooklyn theater, a steel erector said that the building had been put up "like a house of cards." It fell before completion, killing seven workmen and injuring many others.

Since that disaster a Washington theater has crushed nearly a hundred to death. It, too, must have been built like a house of cards.

The tendency to "scamp" work should, as a measure of fairness as well as of public safety, be discouraged in every way. It is a comparatively recent failing. Some of the old houses around Philadelphia, dating back to before the Revolution are as firm now as they were when they received the finishing touches.

When buildings fall of their own weight, or at the pressure of a storm they easily could have been made to resist, there is much indignation. That anybody at fault ever is penalized does not come to mind.

If people are content to let contractors use inferior material, doubtless there will be found plenty of contractors to take advantage of the privilege.

WITH STRINGS ATTACHED

Recently the resignation of an office-holder was presented and accepted. The individual says that he will stick, that he has no intention of vacating his position. The outcome will be watched with considerable interest.

It appears that at the time of taking his seat, the gentleman wrote the resignation, placed it in the hands of another, and that by that other the document was to be considered in force at his own pleasure. In other words, the office was not accepted in such a manner as to permit the incumbent any independence of action. He was not his own man. He was tied with strings that could be pulled at any time.

The claim is made on his behalf that he was not familiar with the practices in vogue, and thought he was doing merely the customary thing.

A man who accepts office, his tenure depending upon the whim of somebody else, his conduct to be prescribed by the judgment of somebody else, is a puppet. He cannot have the freedom that is essential to performance of his duty. He might as well be represented at meetings by a vacant chair.

Formerly the socialist party exacted a resignation from every member elected to any public office. This resignation was in the hands of the party management. At any instant that the public officeholder, in pursuance of his sworn duty, so voted on a question as to displease the party, his resignation was dragged from the archives, and he had to present it, or be dropped from the party rolls. It was in this manner the party lost its brains and character, even before its attitude in the war had placed it among the things that were.

The duty of an office-holder is to the public he is paid to serve. If he is not ready to exercise his own will according to his own conscience, let him get out. The instant he writes a resignation is the instant for its acceptance.

"A SILLY SUBJECT"

Ex-President Wilson was among a number who were asked to tell why he believed the United States "should smile at this time." He replied that he had "no message to send on so silly a subject."

Perhaps this was not the very finest courtesy. Not to have answered at all would have been virtually the expression of the same opinion, and would not have laid ground for the charge of rudeness.

Doubtless a smile is an excellent facial adornment, if there is anything behind it. Unless it conveys a distinct meaning it becomes no more alluring than the grin of the Cheshire cat. It is a mere grimace. The child who "makes a face" or as it is described in cruder circles "makes a snoot" is doing as well as the vacuous smiler whose muscular contortion in an effort to convey a message, in the absence of any message to be conveyed.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you" is all right. But don't laugh at nothing, or the world, far from joining, will be in a mood to heave bricks.

Fortunate indeed, is the humor that induces the hearty, spontaneous smile. Such humor is infectious. It suggests even to the grouchy and the gloomy, that life has a lighter side. But above all things it is essential for the smile to be genuine.

There is some concern felt lest efforts be made at Washington to cut both army and navy to an ineffective basis. This is not the desire of the administration at all, nor that of Americans generally. There are a few zealots, of course, who would be glad to see both arms of defense cut off.

Some psychologists profess to discern in certain colors a sort of control of the emotions. They are able to prove that the sight of red offends a bull, but there, for the present, circumstances force them to pause.

It is rather disgusting to observe the tendency to make the harbor at San Pedro the sport of politicians. There is some difficulty in fixing the blame. In theory, the mayor of Los Angeles has a right to appoint the board. As a matter of fact the council takes this power entirely out of his hands.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut says he would not call a farmer an angel. Neither would the average farmer call Brandegee an angel. Neither fact, however, seems to have any bearing on proposed legislation touching the agricultural interests. The farmers are appearing in the role of tillers of the soil, and not as celestial creatures with wings of snowy fluff.

WRONG END TO

By DR. FRANK CRANE

It can hardly be wondered that so many things in this life are wrong end to since life itself is wrong end to.

We need not go so far as the Presbyterian divine who said in the course of his sermon, "Is it not, my brethren, a most remarkable proof of Divine Providence that death, instead of being placed at the beginning of life, comes at the end of life, so that we can have an opportunity to prepare for it?"

But somehow things seem curiously out of joint, as the little boy noticed when he said that if he had been making the world he would have made the sun to shine at night when we need it and not during the day when it's light anyhow.

That period of life in which we need discretion and wisdom the most is youth, and that is the period in which we have the least. Ignorance and rashness in the boy can wreck his whole life; in the old man they do not make much difference. Virtue and character are of immense importance to the girl, and it is to be feared that she does not think much of these things; the old woman thinks and talks of them a great deal, and in her case they do not make much matter.

All our lives we are accumulating wisdom by the difficult process of experience, and about the time we learn how to live we have to die.

Mark Twain noted this, and one of his favorite fancies was that life should begin with old age, go on through strong manhood and golden youth, and end at last in a pampered and beloved babyhood.

"When I was a boy in Missouri," he said, "I was always on the lookout for invitations but they usually miscarried, went wandering through the aisle of time, and now they are arriving when I am too old and rheumatic and can't travel and must lose my chance.

"The whole scheme of things is turned wrong end to. Life should begin with age and its privileges, and end with youth and its capacity splendidly to enjoy such advantages. As things are now, when in youth a dollar would bring you a hundred pleasures, you can't have it. When you are old, you get it, but there is nothing worth buying with it then."

There is many a man who has proved the truth of this sharp criticism upon the scheme of things. With all our splendid capacities in youth for enjoyment we work like a pack horse and lay up money for old age, and then we can do nothing but sit around a sanatorium.

The only way to disprove this cynic conclusion is to learn a better creed as to what pleasure is. For it is possible, by a proper use of judgment and experience, to come to old age and find in it treasures of contentment and riches of peace which more than make up for the lost hurly-burly of early adventures.

AT THE SIGN OF THE POST

Two of the greatest Americans were born in the month of February.

One referred to as the Father of his country.

And the other might be referred to as the savior of his country.

Washington and Lincoln.

* * *

They were men of differing natures.

One reserved, aristocratic, exclusive, a bit haughty.

One friendly, democratic, intensely human, approachable.

And each was the man needed for his time.

* * *

The world seems to have found always the man for the times.

It seems to have been designed that liberty should survive and go forward.

Or liberty has a going-forward spirit, like the germ in the seed, that cannot be halted.

* * *

To give only a few instances:

Charles First had his Cromwell, as Patrick Henry once said.

George Third had his Washington.

The French Reign of Terror found its Napoleon.

Napoleon in turn had his Wellington.

* * *

Great crises develop great men to meet them.

Or invite the spirits of men to become great.

Or to prove their greatness.

The greatness was latent in the spirit.

Because nothing invited it out.

* * *

Washington, in a different situation, might have been a rather aristocratic country gentleman, with his horses, his fields, his slaves and his estate.

But the times demanded him.

For greater things.

And the demand brought out the latent greatness of the man.

* * *

Lincoln might have been a country lawyer.

A human, friendly, kindly advocate.

Comforting the distressed.

Aiding the needy and sorrowing.

With a wealth of anecdote and a good hearty laugh and a warm hand and kindly heart.

* * *

He might have lived to be eighty or ninety years of age.

And when he appeared at the bar, some one would have said: "That's old Abe Lincoln, the cleverest lawyer and the best after dinner talker, and the kindest hearted man in this county."

* * *

But times demanded him.

And the latent greatness of that human spirit was invited out.

As it might never have been under different circumstances.

* * *

Chance and circumstance have a lot to do with shaping life.

The tragic chance of an assassin's bullet shaped the life of another great American—Theodore Roosevelt.

For it gave him the presidency.

And that invited out the greatness of the man.

* * *

But, having opportunity, these men measured up.

They were of the stuff of which greatness is made.

Weak men would have gone down.

Feeble men would have been destroyed.

Dishonest men would have succumbed.

* * *

We should like to hear two messages today.

Messages from Washington and Lincoln.

We should like to know what Washington would say, for instance, to the American people today.

What Lincoln would say.

* * *

Given all the knowledge and vision and understanding of the present day physical greatness of the United States, it would be interesting to hear Washington speak to us.

And Lincoln.

* * *

To hear from the Father of his country.

And from the savior of his country.

To the inheritors of the country.

For that is what we are.

Inheritors.

* * *

And are we conserving the inheritance of liberty and opportunity or wasting it?

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

"It Is a Beauteous Evening, Calm and Free"—By William Wordsworth (1770-1850)

It is a beauteous evening, calm and free;
The holy time is quiet as a Nun
Breathless with adoration; the broad sun
Is sinking down in his tranquility;
The gentleness of heaven broods o'er the Sea;
Listen! the mighty Being is awake,
And doth with his eternal motion make
A sound like thunder—everlastingly.
Dear Child! dear Girl! that walkest with me here,
If thou appear untouched by solemn thought,
Thy nature is not therefore less divine:
Thou liest in Abraham's bosom all the year,
And worship'st at the Temple's inner shrine,
God being with thee when we know it not.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

TOM MUST TRY AGAIN

[Syracuse Post-Standard]

Senator Watson knows now that the Americans, mostly negroes, hanged in France were guilty of crimes for which they would be hanged in America, or in the senator's state lynched. So he must move on to a new sensation.

THE GENOA CONFERENCE

[New York Comercial]

Whether the United States will participate actively in the proposed economic conference at Genoa in March is not yet definitely decided. It depends on whether it would be for the best interests of all concerned. If this can be demonstrated President Harding will not be likely to hold back on any technical grounds. Hitherto we have been represented by the presence of "unofficial observers" whose observations have not led to anything important for either this country or Europe.

Both under Mr. Wilson and thus far under President Harding the policy has been not to interfere in the European economic situation, a policy that was justified itself up to this time. It should not be taken as a precedent, however, if the situation changes. On general principles it is better to allow Europe to work out her own problem, but considering the large stake America has in European affairs it is not entirely possible for Europe to go ahead without some assurance as to what this country's attitude may be on questions of finance. No plan of corporate reorganization, for example, is ever carried through without at least consulting the chief creditor.

As matters stand now something will have to be done. Europe cannot go on indefinitely with her present shaky financial machinery. It would suit us, of course, if she could devise a plan that would get somewhere without our help, but if we are needed to make her plan a success then we have no right to hold back. The fact must not be lost sight of that it is not only the payment of war loans in which we are interested, but that a recovery of Europe's buying power is vitally essential to our welfare. Any plan that will restore the exchanges and so stimulate our exports will hasten our own depression is the condition of Europe. A thousand other ills radiate from it. The best we can do until Europe is back on her feet is to mitigate them. We cannot overcome effects until we have removed their causes.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

We'd have much less trouble did we not dwell so much upon the ideal things of life. It's perfectly fine to glimpse them. That's different. How can we work toward that of which we know nothing? There is an ideal, we may be sure of that, whatever our position. But so few of us can attain to it! That being the case, why whine for the moon like a foolish puppy?

Of course, there's an ideal husband. But he hasn't been born in the flesh yet. Neither has the ideal wife. Men will scatter cigar ashes and swear softly now and then, women will lose their tempers and become unreasonable and unreasoning at times. The most wisely planned house needs one more closet, the most prosperous business has its grouchy customer. That's life. We'll never be as happy as we might until we learn to grin and bear it.

Most of us do bear it, because we can't get out from under the burden. But we don't grin. We haven't learned that a mouth turned up at the corners is much more attractive to happiness than is one turned down. Indeed it is. Pleasure and frowns aren't close friends, even companions.

Yes, it's all right to see the ideal. But, that accomplished, it's wiser to turn our heads away and do what we can with what really is. That's so much nearer. And so much more necessary to be dealt with.

After all, this for our comfort. It might not be more provocative of comfort, this living with the ideal, even though it seems to us that it would. Perfect people are hard to live with. They show up our own imperfections so plainly.

Maybe honest-to-goodness ideals would be the same. Who can tell?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The city attorney of Chico has a grievance. Told briefly, it is that he sought to inaugurate a war on the illicit liquor traffic. He had dreams of a municipal income sufficient to permit the abolition of taxes.

HENRY JAMES

Full of zeal he hired detectives to get evidence, and they got a plenty. They got, in accordance with the bill rendered, $900 worth. For this sum the attorney finds himself responsible, and as the city pays him only $50 a month, he is displeased.

It seems that the prosecutions were all taken out of his hands. The federal government attended to that, but used the evidence collected by his personal sleuths. The resultant fines were $10,000, of which the city gets no part.

Sympathy will be with the attorney. He has not had a fair deal. Uncle Sam ought to come across like a gentleman, foot the bill, and with his check throw in a note of thanks.

It cannot be said that much surprise follows the announcement that the Irish factions are failing to agree.

Narcotics valued at $200,000 were found in the baggage of a passenger near New York. The authorities are unanimous that this is more than the passenger needed for personal use.

Recently a million dollars' worth of drugs were stolen at Philadelphia, the portion just recovered having been part of the spoils of robbery.

Probably the dope peddler is the most pernicious type of criminal there is, this being severe condemnation when the fact is considered that there are bootleggers.

There always is a call for sympathy somewhere. This time it is from Morris & Co., packers of Chicago. They say that for the year they sustained a net loss of $5,863,505.

It is singular that devoted gentlemen should stick to business at such personal sacrifice.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

If I should ever go mad——

Homicidally, usefully, legally mad, you know; so that I could see plainly what is right to do and not be afraid to do it; do you know what I propose to do the very first thing?

I'm going to catch a certain large, full-bodied, pompous, rich-wifed, fat-witted college professor I know of, and I'm going to throw him down and I shall dandle a cobblestone up and down over his right eye until the light of reason begins to appear in that optic. Because I'm tired of him. Even a college professor who has married well has no right to be such an unreasonable dern fool.

"Every teacher," he has stated, though not in these words, "should set aside 10 per cent of her income for recreation and another 10 per cent for savings."

That's all right for this overfed goldfish, with his body that makes one think of a half-filled sack of cornmeal. But teachers—and other poor people—set aside just what part of their income they are able to set aside for recreation and savings. There were years when my surplus at the end of the week just squared the bill for the laundry at the Chinaman's. My recreation in those days consisted of a ride out to the end of the car line or a visit to Whoosis Park, which had a statue of Schiller in it. I had never heard of Schiller until I found I could get to Whoosis Park for a nickel. If I had set aside 20 per cent of my weekly income for savings and recreation in those days I would have been forced to knit my own clothes out of the ravelings from my wornout socks and live on hickory nuts gathered by myself.

Comfortable people, out of all fear of what may happen if a breakdown comes, or if a job is lost, or possessed of an income that automatically piles up reserves, talk very wisely about what other people who are not comfortable ought to do. Sometimes these theorists would be insulting if they were not so stupid. It is sometimes more important that the teacher—or the other man or woman whose income is counted in dollars instead of in multiples—have a good time and a good meal and a good suit of clothes than have the approval of all the sawdust-headed statisticians north of the gulf.

The easiest thing I know of is to tell somebody else how to run his business.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

FRAGILE ARTICLES BREAK IN MAIL SAYS POSTMASTER

Numerous Complaints Lead Mr. Jackson To Request Packing Care

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson is asking that anyone mailing fragile articles through the mail take extra precaution that they are packed securely.

Several complaints have been made to the office that fragile articles sent through the mail have reached their destination practically destroyed. In all of these cases it was found that the packages had been improperly packed.

The principal trouble with fragile packages is that they are packed in light cardboard boxes without sufficient wrapping to protect the contents from the weather. The next trouble is that the packages are not marked "Fragile," and are thrown in the parcels post packages, where no care is taken to prevent breakage other than the average precaution.

Postmaster Jackson announces that if fragile articles are properly packed and labelled they will in nine cases out of ten reach their destination in good condition, and urges that the public cooperate with the department in the matter of packing and labelling these articles with care.

LOCAL MILITIA GUESTS AT SHOW

A holiday from drill was declared last night by the Glendale companies of the National Guard. This was due partially to the rain that had fallen during the day and in part to the fact that William A. Howe of the Glendale theatre had, through Captain Thomas D. Watson, invited both companies to be his guests at the second show.

The period until time to leave for the show was taken up by instruction in rifle cleaning. Rifles and side arms were taken apart under the direction of Captain Watson and the duty sergeants and every man cleaned and oiled his rifle until it shone like new.

VERDUGO AND CITY ARE CO-OPERATING

The friendly spirit existing between the Casa Verdugo district which has never been incorporated in Glendale, and the city, is evidenced by the plans being made to send a representative delegation from the city council, the chamber of commerce and other civic organizations to the patriotic service to be held Sunday evening at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church. Mayor Spencer Robinson and Harry Girard are to sing and there will be other special treats.

Woman Assessor

Mrs. Roxa S. Kirby, who was recently elected by an overwhelming majority to the office of county assessor in Campbell county, Wyoming. Hard-boiled taxpayers have found her fully capable of meeting every exigency, and the county, which in territorial size is as large as the state of Connecticut, feels proud of this executive. Mrs. Kirby was formerly an Iowa school teacher, having classes in Latin and English. She knows the assessment business from the ground up, having served as deputy assessor prior to her election to the higher office.

THE MILLIONAIRE AT THE GLENDALE

To all pleading she was deaf. So Jack Norman took up the business of being rich, and found in doing so that he was in peril of his life being taken by gangsters. Jack told Kate Blair and received the welcome ultimatum—"When you uncover these crooks I'll marry you."

So the young heir hired himself as his own secretary and fought his way through devious channels of mystery until he came to the chase.

Amazing things happen in "The Millionaire," Herbert Rawlinson's first stellar appearance on the Universal program, to be seen today at the Glendale theatre.

NEW WORK KEEPS PLUMBERS BUSY

"Everything is booming in the plumbing line," said Mr. F. U. Gates, of the Coker & Taylor plumbing company, 209 South Brand boulevard, this morning. "More plans are being brought into our office at this time than at any time since we started in business in Glendale. The fact shows us that before a great while things along the building line will be humming faster than ever before.

"So far as the furnishing of the Glendale homes is concerned it is interesting to know that more than 200 direct action ranges, furnished by us, are now in use in Glendale. This shows that the direct action range is thoroughly appreciated by Glendale housewives. We can prove that this stove uses 50 per cent less gas than any other range on the market, and it does its work better. This firm will take old ranges in as part payment on new stoves."

Mr. Gates has been with the Coker & Taylor company for about a month and is very enthusiastic over the present business outlook.

A. A. U. BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP AT HIGH SCHOOL

Third Game To Be Played Here Against Seaman's Studio

The third basketball game in the A. A. U. championship of Southern California will take place in the boys' gymnasium of the Glendale high school Saturday night. At that time the Glendale boys will play the team representing the Larry Seaman photoplay studio. The game will be called at 7:30 o'clock.

Last Tuesday evening the Glendale boys defeated the lads from the Submarine Base by a score of 38 to 12, and on Friday evening the team representing the Goodyear Rubber Company went down to defeat before the Glendale team, the score being 21 to 16.

HARDING MAKES SARTORIAL HIT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Every American boy is born with the possibility of being President.

One of the requisites of the job is to wear the right thing at the right time; to make a good appearance. For the benefit of boys who aspire to the Presidency, here are some facts about the wardrobe of President Harding, who is said by J. C. Wineman, Washington merchant-tailor designer, to be the best dressed President for many years.

For dinner he wears a Tuxedo suit of black cloth, with a dark silk waistcoat.

For evening the conventional full-dress suit of black cloth, with a white silk waistcoat.

For afternoon a cutaway frock coat with striped trousers and a waistcoat the same material as the coat.

His riding and golf suits are English tweed, with caps of the same material.

With his afternoon and evening clothes he wears the conventional silk hat; with his morning or business suits a soft hat.

His morning suits are cut in sack coat style, and are made of different materials in subdued business shades. And, by the way, he has at least 25 or 30 morning suits!

FLEER'S SHOE SALE IS BIG FEATURE

The grand clearance sale that is being put on by the Wallace H. Fleer shoe store, 112 East Broadway, is proving to be one of the big bargain features of the winter season in Glendale. This sale was started February 4 and from the opening day patronage has continued unusually brisk. Everything in the store—men's furnishings, shoes, hosiery, etc., has been marked down far below the ordinary retail price.

"The people of Glendale certainly know bargains when they see them," said Mr. Fleer this morning. "Throughout this sale everything in the store has been marked down to the point where it is a genuine money-saver. There is only one day left to his sale and those who need anything in our line will do well to visit our store before Saturday night. We are exceedingly encouraged at the patronage we have received in the past, and in return will continue to price our goods to meet the pocket books of the people of Glendale."

MOLLY FLAGG TO SPEAK

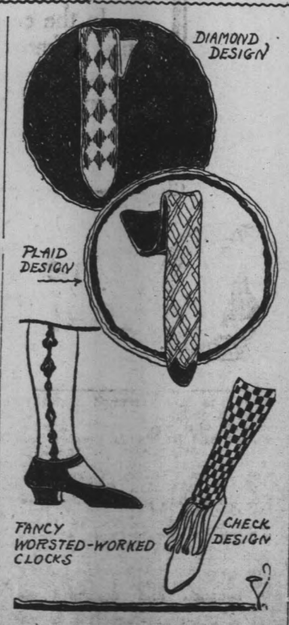
BURBANK, Feb. 10.—On February 14 at the regular meeting of the Women's club, Molly Bloom Flagg will be present and give an address. Mrs. Flagg was hostess to the convention of clubs held in the Yosemite valley.

Fashions for Americans

Wool stockings have long since broken out of the merely "practical" and are now in the list of decidedly fanciful dress accessories, as the group of four stockings shown in the sketch helps to prove. The upper illustration shows a stocking in a diamond-shaped design, combining gray and orange. The two tones are softly blended. The next below shows a gray stocking with a line plaid of bright green, and the checkerboard plaid is in black and white. The plain stocking with clock is very smart and striking, and the color combination should be chosen to blend with the shoes.

The whole footwear trend of late seems to be toward comfort. For several seasons there has been an increasing tendency on the part of smartly dressed women to select shoes that are sensible. The age old prejudice against wearing shoes that are comfortable certainly seems to have passed completely away. Shoe departments are finding it necessary to buy fewer very small sizes. A glance at shoe bargain tables will convince any one that the very small sizes are the ones that fail to find purchasers and that finally have to be forced out at cut prices.

For spring footwear of the sports type will, it is believed, out-sell everything else. For utility wear tans and browns will predominate, as usual, but for actual sports wear white in combination with such shades as black, green, tan, and red will be popular. Colored stitching and pipings in contrasting color will be highly approved on sports shoes with white as the general foundation.



Wool Stockings are Smart as Well as Practical

Naturally with the vogue for sensible shoes continuing, it seems safe to predict that the lightweight, soft wool stockings will continue to be worn right up to warm weather, and for sports wear not infrequently during the summer as well.

The Liars

By JOHN BRECK

When you wake in the dawn to hear a lark-sparrow, astride of a torn on the blackberry bushes, say his grace before breakfast, you feel quite like opening the window to agree with him. "Yes, the world is heavenly with the dew on it, and I'm glad the sun is shining through the leaves so you can find the bug's eggs under them. Here's a crumb to begin with." But you mighty well know he'd go off screeching that you tried to throw salt on his tail. Yet you'll believe the very next tale a little bird tells you—on some one else.

Unless you know better, as I did this morning.

Those fiends of gophers had been uprooting my carrots again, outdigging my dog, and turning up a supercilious whisker at my poison bait. I needed a friend—well, if not actually a friend at least a neighborly acquaintance with some one whose self-interest chimed in with mine. Wherefore did I have an understanding with the man who was ploughing a nearby field.

It was not long before he whooped an introduction to the very gentleman I was looking for. He was coiled up, still, in his smoothworn niche in the earth just behind the ploughshare, reluctantly awaking from his winter doze, so sleepy eyed he did not move when I put out a hand to loose his lethargic coils. His black-tubed tongue spread its two filamentous tips in mute anxiety till his lithe form felt the security of a tail-wrap on my arm. Then it only gave an occasional puzzled lick at the open air.

A handsome snake he was, and rare to boot—one any naturalist might well be proud to have in his menage. Rhinechis Elegans, every one of his forty-odd inches justified his aristocratic name. His sleek, cream-colored sides were brilliant with mahogany and olive markings. Most of all, his suave manner commended him. Without a trace of irritation he let me lay him in my spaded ground.

There I felt him. And there those lying birds gathered around. "He's trying to hypnotize us," they squawkled. "He wants to eat us! Look what he's doing to us. See! See!"

I saw—that their hysteria would shortly come to actual eye-pecking. With my own hands I dug him a new hole and watched him fit himself within it like a watch-spring in a case before I earthed him in. I have no doubt that I will have concrete evidence of his gratitude.

Which is something you never need expect of any bird!

There is a lot of idle chat
Of Revolutionary days,
Their customs, manners and all that,
Superior in many ways.
Delightful folk, they were no doubt,
Just as has been so often said,
There's just this I don't like about
Them—every one of them is dead.

I hear much talk of knights of old,
In good King Arthur's time, may be,
I know they were all brave and bold
And ladies very fair to see;
But I don't envy them, Oh, no!
Their stock is not up over par;
They were delightful, even so,
But Oh, just think how dead they are!

And then the Pilgrim Fathers—yes,
They were fine men, I will agree,
A goodly company, I guess,
Of which I would not care to be.
I have to struggle, stint and strive
To get my clothes and daily bread,
But, anyhow, I am alive,
And every one of them is dead.

So I'm content with Now and Here,
No distant future's rosy morn
Appeals to me for it is clear
In that case I'd not yet be born.
And as for Pilgrims, Knights—I say
I would not be the noblest bred,
For I'm alive, Here, Now, Today!
And they, Oh they're so very dead!

Gets a Second Shock

To the elderly spinster's amazement the young man in the sitting room suddenly threw himself upon his knees as she entered.

"Miss Oldcake," said he, "will you be my wife?"

"Yes, Mr. Nutt," replied she, gasping for breath. "But, really, I thought all along that you had serious designs on my younger sister."

"I have," was the rejoinder, as the youth rose to his feet. "I'm only practicing now!" — Boston Post.

COAL DOMINATION HURTS ITALIANS

Great Portion of Wealth Now Goes Up in Smoke

ROME, Feb. 10.—Along with Italy's present effort to free herself from the bondage of foreign coal domination by the electrification of her state railways, Italy is making an equally heroic effort to throw off the poke of foreign tobacco slavery.

Between what Italy now pays for foreign coal and foreign tobacco, it can be truthfully said that a goodly portion of her national wealth goes annually up in smoke—and foreign smoke at that.

What makes it particularly hard for Italy to gain her tobacco independence is the fact that just as she gets her nostrils nicely filled with the sweet scent of liberty and is on the point of burning her betters with the lighted stump of a domestic made cigar, the Italian population as a whole suddenly takes to smoking more than ever, and Italy has to return to spending millions abroad in order to supply the demand.

Before the war Italy smoked 400,000,000 lire worth of cigars and cigarettes annually. Now she smokes 2,700,000,000. While a portion of this increase is due to the advance in prices charged, yet the greater bulk of it is due to the fact that the war taught hundreds of thousands of young men to smoke, many of whom had they remained in their native peasant districts would not have been able to, and also to the fact that Italian women are in no way behind their sisters of other modern civilized nations in taking to the wicked weed.

All of this has a very direct bearing upon Italy's finances owing to the fact that the government operates a state monopoly on tobacco in Italy as regards both the manufacture and the sale. As she also has to buy the raw product the question of whether she can produce enough at home to supply her local demand or whether she has to buy abroad thereby increasing her exportations and sending up her exchange, becomes of great importance.

Italy's monopoly on tobacco is the only one that as a matter of fact has been a real success as a revenue producer. She has been able to operate this on a basis of about 70 per cent profit. In other words, of the 7,000,000 lire which the Italian public spends every day for tobacco, 5,000,000 lire goes into the state treasury as profit and revenue and only 2,000,000 lire actually goes up in smoke.

Frankly, Italy thinks that it would be possible to do better than this: in fact she doubts if the public would stand for a larger percentage of tax and a smaller ratio of smoke. Hence her only chance of making the monopoly more profitable to the state is by producing all of her tobacco at home and avoiding foreign purchases of the raw material.

The government is therefore encouraging and doing everything possible to promote tobacco growing. However, Italian peasants are neither fond of novelties in the matter of crops or of the difficulties involved in tobacco growing, but little by little the Italian government is winning her freedom from foreign tobacco markets.

At the present time the Italian government spends 480,000,000 lire annually for raw tobacco of which only 180,000,000 is spent at home, the other 300,000,000 going to foreign tobacco growers.

To date Italy has made the most progress in the growing of light tobacco of which she uses 60,000 quintals annually. In the southern province of Leccese about 20,000 acres are now under cultivation and this about supplies the local demand.

With dark tobacco of the "Kentucky" type for her cigars Italy is not so fortunate. At the present time this is being cultivated principally in Tuscany. However, her needs are 200,000 quintals annually and she produces only 50,000. But by bringing her present acreage from 8,000 up to 12,000 Italy hopes eventually to win her tobacco independence and blow her smoke in the face of other nations instead of having to blow back their own, for which she has paid them.

ARGENTINE FAT GIRLS ABANDON LEMON JUICE

Try Outdoor Exercise To Reduce Surplus Weight

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 10 (By Mail)—Year by year Argentina's consumption of lemon juice and vinegar is growing smaller, for the girls have discovered that it is easier and more pleasant to keep themselves lithe and thin through outdoor exercise than by the former system of starvation, doctoring and dieting. There is more health and less fat in a tennis court than in a whole keg of vinegar, they have found.

Persons who have lived in Argentina for some years have remarked on the visible change that has taken place in the appearance of the young people, more especially in the girls, since the whole country became sports mad. Formerly, the girls spent most of their time indoors with no prospect except to continue doing so and to become rounder, plumper and less active with the passing years. Some of them rebelled, chose the vinegar-starvation route and ended with yellow, sunken cheeks and ruined digestive systems.

Then gradually Argentina seemed by common consent to change into a country of outdoor sports. First, the young men and boys took up football and rowing, then their sisters discovered that they too were entitled to the freedom that comes with outdoor games. Principally they have chosen tennis as the best game for them, although they also play golf and row on the "Tigre," where Buenos Aires enjoys its water sports.

Every holiday in Buenos Aires presents the spectacle of thousands of persons on pleasure bent hurrying to the tennis or golf clubs, the football fields or the river. Fully half of them are women dressed in bright sports clothes and many of them carrying tennis racqets or golf clubs. Not only have the women and girls developed a love for outdoor sports, they have also developed a surprising aptitude for them and play their favorite games hard and well.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home; though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.

"Trouble"

Behind your telephone service is the "plant"—a complicated mechanical equipment of poles, cables, wires, switchboards, instruments, etc., carefully adjusted and absolutely dependent on perfect construction and maintenance.

The "plant" is constantly subject to accident and outside interference. Storms, fires, the carelessness of workmen, the pranks of children, concealed defects of material—all play their part.

The telephone company maintains a skilled force whose sole duty is to quickly restore service interrupted from any cause. Your lines are constantly watched and tested.

In the case of trouble we are generally the first to know it, but a notification to our Complaint Department when there is anything wrong will be appreciated.
